Retired farmer and historian Arthur Reist sits in front of the newly-painted historical mural of a Conestoga wagon and team of Belgian horses. Reist has enjoyed educating the public about the painting, which is not only historically accurate but also a memorial to his ancestor, Jacob Reist. The mural is the work of Wayne Fettro of Elizabethtown. See story page A36. Photo by Michelle Ranck

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
October 4, 2000
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat and corn bids finished higher again with planting and harvest delays offering support. Soybean bids were slightly lower in a correctional move. Wheat steady to 11 cents higher. Corn steady to 6 cents higher. Sorghum 1 cent higher. Soybeans 1 to 3 cents lower.

Dryness in the southern Plains continued to slow hard red winter wheat planting However, some rain is being forecast for overnight. Another export donation for wheat was announced, and reports that Egypt is looking for 30,000 metric tons of US wheat, added support.

Expectations for another cut in harvest acres and optimism about export sales improving kept corn bids on the upward climb Some rain in the Corn Belt area this week slowed harvest in some places.

Soybean bids fell slightly lower, despite the overnight export sale to Taiwan. This, however, doesn't put this weeks total very high. Harvest progress continued to pressure bids.

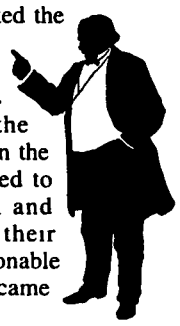
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

OCTOBER 9-15, 2000

FULL HUNTER'S MOON, OCTOBER 13.

TUXEDO INVENTED

On October 10, 1886, in Tuxedo Park, New York, men's fashions took a step—well, either forward or backward, depending upon your point of view. That was the day Griswold Lorillard invented the tuxedo. The word comes from P'tuksit, the Delaware Indian word for "wolf." The Delawares divided themselves into three groups, with the turtle, the turkey, and the wolf as their totems. In the 18th century, the word was anglicized to Tuxedo, from which Tuxedo Park and Tuxedo Lake, in New York, took their names. When the area became a fashionable resort, the tuxedo—without tails—became the mode of dressing down!



Every generation laughs at the old fashions but religiously follows the new.

–Henry David Thoreau

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ To clean silver, wrap it securely in tin foil and add baking soda and water. Soak for 20 minutes, then polish.

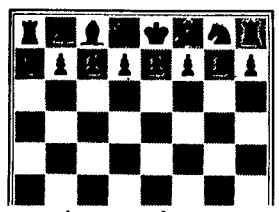
CHESS PIE

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
1/2 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
pinch of salt
3 eggs
1-1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup cream
1 cup chopped pecans
1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell



Cream the butter with the sugars and salt, and then beat in the eggs one by one. Stir in the remaining ingredients and pour into the pie shell. Bake at 375°F for about 35 minutes, or until an inserted toothpick comes out clean.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

OPINION

Accountability Is Key

Agricultural commodity producers want some kind of accountability most of the time.

While many large producer organizations are somewhat divided over whether the current commodity checkoffs should continue or not, one thing is certain: producers deserve accountability.

They want proof that the dollars deducted from the sale of the items either at auction or at private sale are going to move that product in the marketplace.

How can anyone blame them?

Since there was some controversy over the way USDA handled the pork checkoff referendum, some groups, such as the Livestock Marketing Association (LMA), do not believe the USDA should be so heavy handed.

"It's time to start treating American beef producers like citizens, and not suspects," said John Willis, LMA president.

Willis and the LMA were recently questioning why there would be so many delays for the go-ahead beef checkoff vote in the time when primaries, two conventions, and a Presidential election will have passed. The question: do beef producers have the right to decide whether to keep spending their own money on the checkoff?

LMA already has its own petitions, submitted to the USDA in November 1999.

As for the pork checkoff referendum, ballots won't be counted until Nov. 29, according to Kathy Heil of the Lancaster Farm Service Agency.

In the meantime, rather than trying to decide whether checkoffs are necessary, what about real efforts about accountability? Are there methods to prove where the money is going, and why?

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Build Manure Pit Barriers

Dr. Dennis Murphy, Penn State professor of agricultural and biological engineering, recently reported of a recent farm fatality that was the result of a tractor with a blade sliding into a manure pit while scraping manure.

The following safety precautions concerning tractors and loaders and manure pits may save lives and prevent this tragedy from occurring on your farm.

A tractor or loader scraping or dumping at a push off ramp could slide over the edge of the ramp. This might happen because of operator error, mechanical failure, or simply a too slick surface.

A machine that goes over the edge into a pit or storage can result in a fatal crushing, entrapment, or drowning of the operator. Install a guardrail or safety bar at the push-off point to prevent the tractor or skid loader from sliding over the edge.

An additional safety measure, especially if small children are on the farm, would be to install a chainlink gate in front of the guardrail or safety bar. This gate may also be topped with barbed wire to discourage older children from exploring the dangerous manure pit.

To Understand Types Of Immunity

Many vaccines are available in killed and modified live form.

According to Chester Hughes, Lancaster County extension livestock agent, we must understand how the different types of vaccines work before we decide which form to use.

There are two separate and distinct parts of the immune system. The first is the humoral (antibody) system and the second is the cellular (cell-mediated) system. As a general statement, when protecting against bacterial pathogens (Clostridium and Pasturella), we want to stimulate humoral immunity. When we are protecting against viral pathogens (IBR and BVD), we want to stimulate cellular immunity.

So, when thinking about the viral respiratory diseases such as IBR, BVD P13 and BRSV, cellular immunity is most important.

The best option is to schedule a meeting with your herd health veterinarian so that person may advise you on a vaccination program specific for your herd.

To Understand Vaccines

Chester Hughes, Lancaster County extension livestock agent, reminds farmers to understand the differences between modified live and killed vaccines.

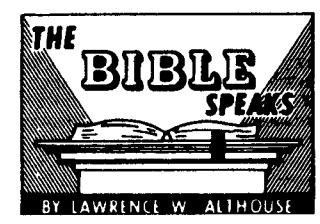
Killed vaccines do not stimulate local immunity (example: nasal cavity) at all and do not stimulate or poorly stimulate cellular immunity. Killed vaccines are very effective in stimulating humoral (antibody) immunity. Killed vaccines generally require multiple doses (2-4 weeks apart) to immunize.

One dose has no benefit at all. The immunity stimulated by killed vaccines is short-lived, requiring boosters every few months to one year for maintenance.

Modified live vaccines provide cellular and humoral immunity that persists for years to life and are the first choice for successful immunization of young animals.

Modified live vaccines may cause abortion in unprotected pregnant animals. Modified live vaccines are less expensive per dose than killed products and require fewer doses to adequately immunize the animal.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "Many times the difference between failure and success is doing something nearly right or doing it exactly right."



WHAT'S WRONG WITH GOD'S EYES?

Background Scripture:
1 Samuel 15:10 through 16:13.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 55:6-11.

To celebrate my 70th birthday, earlier this year I committed myself to reading the massive masterpiece by my seminary professor, Reinhold Niebuhr, called "The Nature and Destiny of Man."

In one of the numerous lists inspired by the turn of the millennium, it was voted one of the most important of the 20th century.

One of its great themes is the arrogance of human nature, not in that we sin, but that we presume that we are righteous. "The whole burden of the prophetic message, "Niebuhr writes, "is that there is only one God . . . and that the sin of man consists in the vanity by which he imagines himself, his nations, his cultures, his civilizations to be divine."

On another occasion he said that "not much evil is done by evil men; most of the evil is done by good people who do not know that they are not good."

Is there any greater human arrogance than for us to assume that God sees things pretty much as we see them? This is the seat of Saul's failure — he presumes that God agrees with him! Of course, he didn't say it that way, but that's the way he acted.

Note the breezy confidence with which he greets the angry Samuel: "Blessed be you to the Lord; I have performed the commandment of the Lord" (15:13). He has blatantly disobeyed God's command, but he pretends that what he did was just the opposite.

'In Your Own Eyes"

In the midst of this great sales pitch, Samuel shouts: "Stop! I will tell you what the Lord said to me this night" (15:16). Although God has called Saul, and despite his promises to be with him, Saul has continued to see himself as the wrong man for the job.

Samuel says: "Though you are little in your own eyes, are you not the head of the tribes of Israel?"

Saul's failure was his willful refusal to accept what God saw in him. To cling doggedly to such a diminished view of ourselves, despite God's assurances, is a sin, not humility.

Another example of the difference between what Saul and God saw is the king's steadfast dependence, not upon doing God's will, but in practicing rituals. His perception of what God wanted of him was radically different. Samuel challenges him: "Has the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice."

That was not the first nor last time in history when people have chosen ritual instead of obedience. Is it not still one of our problems?

Saul becomes a pathetic character here. Although he acknowledges his failure, "I have sinned," he goes on to make a convenient and transparent excuse: "I have transgressed the commandment of the Lord . . . because I feared the people and obeyed their voice" (15:26). In other words, it is really their fault. The leader has been misled by his followers! And now he expects that his easy repentance will negate the consequences.

Whose Voice?

Saul has made an all too common and human error: he has failed to see that Vox populi non vox Dei — "The voice of the people is not the voice of God." In his exposition of this passage in "The Interpreter's Bible," John C. Schroeder says something that jarred me: "The will of the majority is not the divine oracle. To operate a society by the will of the majority has proven to be a satisfactory way of government in a democracy. But in history, the majority is seldom right — some minority is. This the reason why democracies, if they are to survive, must always protect the minorities. Some of them may be the voice of God."

Saul placed his confidence in a poll of public opinion.

God then instructs Samuel to go to Bethlehem where the prophet is to anoint God's choice as Saul's successor. When he comes to Jesse's family, as instructed, he is amazed that God does not seem to choose any of Jesse's sons. "Surely," says Samuel, "the Lord's anointed is before him," but God tells him, "Do not look on his appearance or on the height of his stature, because I have rejected him; for the Lord sees not as man sees; man looks on the outward appearance, but the Lord looks on the heart" (16:7).

Learning that there is one son, the youngest, David, who is not present, Samuel sends for him. And, when the young David arrives, the Lord says to Samuel, "Arise, anoint him; for this is he." God has seen in David what Samuel and others — and even we — would not be likely to see. There's nothing wrong in not being able to have God's 20/20 vision; what is wrong is to pretend that our vision is 20/20, like his."

Irradiated Beef Coming To A Store Near You

By Bill Henning
Penn State

Test marketing of irradiated ground beef began in earnest in May in retail stores in Minneapolis. Since then, most major packers have product in some supermarkets and are watching consumer reaction to it.

It is not being heavily advertised and is being offered only as frozen patties.

Most of the product in the retail stores is being treated in the Titan plant in Sioux City, IA. Irradiated product should be available in Pittsburgh soon and Schwann's is also distributing it (although the availability is not known publicly).

Some packers see more acceptance in food service than in retail so are focusing more on the restaurant market.

The amount of product currently being irradiated by beef processing companies represents only a fraction of the eight billion pounds of ground beef produced in the U.S. each year. How much more irradiated beef will be produced will depend upon consumer response.

Company officials indicate they view irradiation as a consumer choice issue. The public will ultimately decide whether they consider irradiation acceptable.

Many highly respected organizations, including the Food and Drug Administration, USDA, Centers for Disease Control, the World Health Organization and the American Medical Association recognize the benefits of irradiation.

Although consumer advocates have quietly accepted the irradiation process as another intervention step in food safety, the issue has not gone without detractors. A New Jersey assemblyman has introduced state legislation to halt the sale and distribution of irradiated food.

"We know irradiation generates carcinogens," said Mike Perrone, legislative assistant for New Jersey assemblyman, John Kelly. He cites a study in India that found children who ate irradiated wheat had chromosome abnormalities.

The authors of that study also found chromosome abnormalities in monkeys and rats fed irradiated foods, Perrone said.

He added that all of the studies were published in peer-reviewed scientific journals.

Perrone also said the New Jersey College of Medicine found that Chinese medical students who ate irradiated food had chromosome abnormalities. The legislation has 46 cosponsors, which Perrone said makes it likely to pass the assembly.

Milk Marketing Board Announces September Class I Price To Be Paid To Dairy Farmers

HARRISBURG — The Milk Marketing Board (MMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for September Class I milk as an average of $15.49 in the western areas of the Commonwealth, and an average of $15.98 in the central and eastern areas of the Commonwealth. Class I milk is beverage type milk.

These prices do include the current over-order premium of $1.00 per one hundred pounds of milk, and the fuel adjustment premium of $.25 per one hundred pounds of milk.

Since 1988, the MMB has mandated over-order premiums on Class I milk due to adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania dairy farmer.

Chairwoman Beverly R. Minor announced that since the inception of the MMB's over-order premium in 1988, Pennsylvania dairy farmers have received an additional $213,472,000 income.

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Steer calves steady to 3.00 lower, heifer calves steady with last week's decline. Feeder cattle steady in limited trade. Demand light to moderate for calves. Supply mostly calves. Yearlings in light supply, particularly those suited for northern feedlots. Early season wheat grazing prospects are very questionable given dry conditions throughout major grazing belt.

Many feedlots already stuffed with calves. Thus calf outlets are fairly narrow and calf run is well underway. Calf quality plain through attractive. Quality of yearlings plain, few loads attractive. Calves in medium to fleshy conditions. Feeders in slightly thin to moderate flesh. Calf weigh-ups mostly average; yearling cattle in average to full conditons.

Lean slaughter cows and slaughter bulls 1.50-2.00 lower; boner and breaker cows steady. Demand good for better cows, light for thin cows and bulls. Southern packers out of the market as fall culling season is underway. Majority of cows traveling to far north to kill. Plenty of cows returned to country for another try at raising a calf but good quality types scarce. Total of 715 cows and bulls sold with 40 percent going to packers.

Receipts this week 11,150; last week 8,838; last year 9,808.

Supply consisted of 53% yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 41% calves under 600 lbs; 6% cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 36% of feeder and calf supply.

Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

Nine Years In Making, Martin Finally Captures New Holland Swine Champion

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — It took some time. Took a lot of time, actually (nine years), but Gary Martin of New Holland could finally claim a supreme market swine trophy, as he did Tuesday evening here at the New Holland Farmers' Fair.

Gary, 19, a 2000 Garden Spot High School graduate and graduate of the architectural drafting program at Brownstown Vo-Tech, watched as his brother Gerald took home a champion trophy in 1995, said Gary.

But on Tuesday evening, a Yorkshire/Hampshire gilt, the 256-pound light heavyweight champion, captured the eye of Dave Holloway, Glen Rock, swine judge.

Gary, son of Clarence and Marilyn Martin, purchased the hog from the Strauss Brothers in Lincoln. Gary works as assistant draftsman for Conestoga Pole Building, New Holland.

The former Grassland FFA sentinel plans to continue showing at upcoming fairs.

Reserve champion went to Sarah Boyd, 19, daughter of Kerry and Deb Boyd, Ephrata. This is the last year of 4-H showing for Sarah, Ephrata High School graduate, but she plans to continue showing as an FFA member.

Sarah exhibited the 262-pound heavyweight division winner. Sarah's family nicknamed the hog "Xena" in honor of the TV warrior princess.

There were 63 hogs and 26 exhibitors. Following is a list of show placings.

Cambria County Livestock Sale Announces Results

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — At the Cambria County 4-H Livestock Sale in early September, 196 animals brought a total of $82,237.63 from area buyers.

From Windber, Michael Weyant's grand champion market swine sold for $2.95 a pound to Dr. Kerry Kirsch. The reserve champion swine of Megan Skebeck, Patton, sold for $2.40 per pound to Agway Energy Products. The sale average for 112 market hogs was $1.36 per pound.

Hoss's Steak and Sea House bid $2.95 for the grand champion steer of Andy Myers, South Fork, but donated it back for resale to benefit the 4-H scholarship fund. Alex Froehlich Packing Co. then purchased the animal.

Kostas Restaurant purchased the reserve champion steer of Kelly Myers of South Fork for $1.20 per pound. An average of $1.01 per pound was paid for the 24 steers that crossed the auction block.

Farm Bureau: Labels Needed For Homegrown Meat

WASHINGTON, D.C.— In the interest of fairness to American consumers and the producers who put meat and poultry on their tables, Farm Bureau recently told Congress that country-of-origin labels should be standard on all retail meat.

"We feel that consumers have the right to know where the food they are buying is produced, in order to distinguish American products from those produced in other countries," New Jersey Farm Bureau President John Rigolizzo told a House Agriculture subcommittee. "Consumers have confidence in America's farmers and ranchers. This allows them to buy products produced by their fellow Americans and be assured that the products were produced in America."

Rigolizzo, a Garden State farmer and American Farm Bureau Federation board member, said surveys show consumers care about the origin of the food they eat. He said current government policy, which allows imported livestock to carry USDA inspection labels when the animals are processed in U.S. packing facilities, is misleading and patently unfair to American producers.

"Today, a great deal of foreign beef is graded by USDA and sold at retail to the consumer simply as USDA-graded beef," Rigolizzo said. "Foreign beef is frequently advertised as USDA-inspected meat without mention of whether it is a domestic or imported product."

He said despite failed legislative attempts to amend the Federal Meat Inspection Act to require imported product labels, Farm Bureau continues to push the issue.

Rigolizzo told lawmakers that Farm Bureau and other farm and livestock groups recently asked Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman to write new regulations to create a program to allow home-grown beef to be labeled "Beef: Made in the USA."

"Farm Bureau believes that a process-verified program certified by USDA would be beneficial to our livestock producers," Rigolizzo said, noting that the certified beef must originate from cattle that are processed, raised, and fed a minimum of 100 days in the U.S.

USDA Reaches Proposed Settlement Of Animal Welfare Lawsuit

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA has reached a proposed settlement of an animal welfare lawsuit brought by the Alternatives Research & Development Foundation.

Under the terms of the settlement, which has yet to be approved by the federal judge overseeing the case, USDA will initiate and complete a rulemaking process on the regulation of rats, mice, and birds under the Animal Welfare Act. These animals are not currently regulated under the Animal Welfare Act by USDA.

"I believe this proposed settlement is a reasonable resolution of this case," said Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman. "By initiating rulemaking, we ensure an open process with significant opportunity for public input. If the settlement is approved, I would strongly urge interested parties to actively participate in the rulemaking process to ensure that all points of view are fairly represented."

USDA will keep ARDF and the public informed throughout the rulemaking process.

National Farmers Organization Commends GAO Report

AMES, Iowa — A major farm organization recently heralded congressional moves to corral America's agricultural giants.

Working hard for U.S. family farmers and ranchers, National Farmers Organization commended the recent General Accounting Office report and Sen. Charles Grassley's legislation to restore fairness to agriculture.

"We're extremely enthusiastic that it appears the bull is finally being taken by the horns," said Paul Olson, President of National Farmers Organization. "With all the mergers, consolidations, and anticompetitive practices that have taken place in the last 10 years, it's certainly time to exercise some regulatory authority, and restore equitability and profitability to family farming."

The General Accounting Office (GAO) reported in 1991 that USDA was not effectively monitoring competition in livestock markets, and its most recent report suggests that the nation's agriculture department has not exercised its regulatory power provided by the 1921 Packers and Stockyards Act. Gerald Thain, a noted expert on competition and a professor at the University of Wisconsin law school, has said that the Secretary of Agriculture holds complete regulatory power over packers and all their actions.

A study commissioned by the American Meat Institute, which represents some large U.S. packers, even found a negative side to contracting. Its study concluded that when contracting becomes widespread, open markets wither away and fair price discovery does not take place. The report also noted that increased market concentration can raise the bar for independent producers to remain in business and prosper.

"While USDA has acknowledged the need to make changes in the past, the agency has never gotten the job done," said Senator Charles Grassley, R-Iowa. "The GAO report provides the blueprint for fixing the problems." National Farmers, along with several other farm groups, have been calling attention to the problem for several years.

To Expand Or Not, What Are The Risks?

This regular column from Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science features the research findings, student opportunities, and resports on other important topics generated in the Department. The back issues of the column are archived on Lancaster Farming's Internet www.lancasterfarming.com home page. Look for them.

Dairy producers are continually confronted with numerous decisions. These decisions involve different levels of risk, depending on the types of decisions and the potential outcomes and consequences of the choices available.

Day to day production decisions carry with them the risks of variable responses. For example, what is the milk response with a change in feed ration formulation or what is the impact of varying price on the profitability of the farm enterprise?

Longer-term decisions also have built in uncertainty and risks. Risk and uncertainty are areas of critical analysis for dairy farmers considering whether to expand or not.

Dairy farmers who choose to expand face a different set of risks than those who choose an alternative means of increasing the viability and sustainability of the dairy farm business.

Those who choose to expand must consider, for example: the risks of borrowed capital; the social risks of a larger agricultural enterprise within a community; the personal and psychological risks associated with managing a large multi-person workforce; or the financial risks of generating sufficient and stable returns to maintain the economic viability and sustainability of the dairy business.

For those who choose not to expand the risks may include: generating sufficient income to sustain a reasonable standard of living; or the risks associated with the selection of an alternative means of dairy production that enhances economic viability.

Dairy farmers may choose not to expand for several reasons. These reasons can include: constraints on the availability of resources, such as land, labor, or capital; the lack of adequate management skills required for a relatively large business operation; production problems, such as low milk yields or low reproductive rates, that would require the farmer to remedy the problem before expansion is a viable option; the lack of a proven financial or production record necessary for a large loan, or simply a lack of desire to expand.

Despite what some may think, farmers who choose to maintain their current herd size and milk production level are still faced with risks in many facets of their business.

The principal risk associated with not expanding is a relatively narrow profit margin. The profit margin is the difference between the milk price and the variable costs of production on a unit basis.

The margin reflects the funds available for fixed expenses, debt reduction, capital replacement, and family living. The risk is that over time, both input and output prices could change, resulting in reduced margins.

This is particularly true when one considers the impact of inflation over time in eroding "real" margins. The impact of reduced margins on farm profit and family living expenses may be severe.

A producer may choose to expand the dairy business to take advantage of economies of scale that arise with larger operations. Other reasons for expansions include the requirement that the business generate increased income to support a larger farm family, or so that the dairy business can remain competitive with other units that have expanded.

Compared to the risks of not expanding, the risks of expansion, particularly in the early stages of expansion, are numerous and potentially disastrous to the dairy business. However, with proper planning and management, these risks can be reduced to ensure the survival and growth of the new operation.

The management of any risk will depend on the type of risk and the tools available to reduce the impact of the risk on the viability of the dairy business.

Day to day price risk can be reduced using futures and options, or forward contracting. Input and output price variability can be lowered by knowing the potential problems that could occur and to plan accordingly to reduce the impact of these problems on the business.

Longer-term financial risks can be managed by using different combinations of leveraging, borrowing types and alternative resource acquisition, such as leasing, renting, contracting, or partnering.

When making the decision to expand or not, the dairy business management team needs to consider all the risks that may arise and develop plans to counter or reduce the impacts these risks may have on the survival of the business.

Choosing whether or not to expand, should be made based on which choice reduces the whole set of risks, and not a sublet of the risks, to a level acceptable to the dairy business owners.

Over the next several months, I will continue the discussion of the types of risks a dairy business may face, whether the business expands or not.

Mexican Antidumping Debated

By Bill Henning
Penn State

On a trip to west Texas last fall, we heard complaints about exorbitant duties being imposed on ground beef to be shipped to Mexico.

The North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), was exposed to eliminate tariffs of product being shipped to Mexico.

One packer reported that the tariff for ground beef shipped from Texas to Mexico would be 40 percent, yet product from IBP, ConAgra, or Excel had little or no tariff.

This packer had Mexican customers who wanted to buy his product, but could not afford to pay that much tax. Yet, those companies that had trade status, did not have product to ship there.

Recently, Mexico's Secretariat of Commerce and Industrial Development (SECOFI) announced the first request for a panel review of its final decision on the beef antidumping claim.

IBP had asked NAFTA panel to review the antidumping duties.

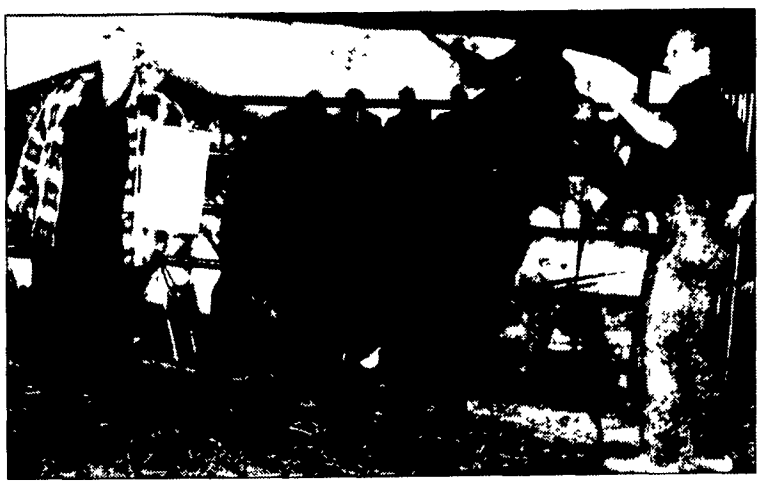
Huntingdon County Youth Beef Winners Announced

William R. Nichols of Tyrone won Supreme Champion Beef Female at the Huntingdon County Fair.

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

HUNTINGDON (Mifflin Co.) — The 2000 Huntingdon County 4-H and FFA Beef Show took place in mid-August and concluded with John D. Nichols of Tyrone accepting the grand champions honors. Show judge Wendall Landis of Lancaster selected Nichols' 1,314-pound Angus. Nichols, an 18-year-old freshman at Penn State, later sold his steer to Eric Lindberg of Hoss's Steak and Sea House in Huntingdon. Lindberg purchased the steer for $3.20 per pound.

Reserve grand champion market steer went to Becky Mowrer of Petersburg after she showed her 1,149-pound Angus cross. Mowrer is a sophomore at Juniata Valley High School in Alexandria. At the livestock sale, Poole Anderson Construction of Huntingdon purchased her steer for $1.40 per pound.



John D. Nichols of Tyrone proudly accepts grand champion honors during the Huntingdon County 4-H and FFA Beef Show held during the Huntingdon County Fair.

Supreme champion honors went to the grand champion Angus female owned by William R. Nichols of Tyrone. Nichols is 12-years-old and in seventh grade at Juniata Valley High School.

The beef sale took place Friday, Aug. 18. The 23 steers sold averaged $1.09 per pound with champions and $.97 without champions.

Branded Beef Market

By Bill Henning
Penn State

Another large packer has entered the branded beef market. The success IBP has shown in the introduction of the Thomas E. Wilson™ line of beef products has prompted others to follow suit.

IBP continues its expansion into the production of case-ready, branded meat products. The company has chosen Sherman, Texas as the site for a new case-ready meats operation that will employ up to 1,400 people.

The Sherman plant will produce packaged cuts of fresh beef and pork that are ready for retail grocers to place directly into the meat case. The operation will eventually produce several million pounds of fresh meat each week.

Product from the plant will be sold to retail grocers, primarily in the southern U.S., under the company's new Thomas E. Wilson™ brand name.

Hormel Foods Corp., pleased with its branded fresh pork product line, now plans a move into the branded beef category, reported Reuters. Sales of Hormel's Always Tender™ flavored marinated pork items were up 18 percent in the first half of 2000 in terms of tonnage, while the Always Tender Boneless pork line saw sales tonnage expand 45 percent.

"What's next? Obviously we're moving into beef," said CFO Michael McCoy. Two flavors of Always Tender marinated beef, peppercorn and barbecue, have received a "phenomenal" response in five test markets, he said.

New Holland Mirrors Ephrata's Sheep Competition

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Interjected among the county show circuit exhibitors were some new faces at the New Holland Sheep Show, Wednesday evening. Regardless, the champions for market lambs and breeding sheep were a repeat of the previous week's competition at the Ephrata Fair.

Walking away with the grand champion market trophy was Sarah Boyd, with the reserve going to Ryan Bollinger, Manheim. Although Sarah, Ephrata, used the same lamb that won the non-sale champion honors last week, it was the first time Ryan had showed his homebred Suffolk-cross that took the reserve placing.

"I was pretty surprised," Ryan, Manheim, said of the lamb named Rader.

Jen Zimmerman's Southdown's ewe took the title for grand champion breeding sheep overall breeds with Andrew Gerhart's Suffolk, the reserve.

For the first time, Adam Zurin, Mount Joy, showed champion and reserve lambs in the non-sale division. Adam said the bred and owned Suffolk crosses named Brute and Whoopie, are not related. He will decide later on which to show at the Pennsylvania Farm Show and which one to retain for breeding purposes.

Judge Matt Sellers, York Suffolk and Hampshire breeder, said that of all the shows he judged this year, New Holland had the most competitive showmanship classes. Trophies were presented to Sarah Boyd, senior; Ryan Donough, intermediate; and Erin Felak, 1-3 years experience.

In addition to Jen's Southdown and Andrew's Suffolk, other breeding sheep winners include the following: Cheviot champion ewe and ram, Jimmy Zimmerman; Corriedale champion ewe and ram, Travis Redmond; Dorset champion ewe and ram, Radell Peters; Romney champion ewe and ram, Mark Brennen; Shropshire champion ewe and ram, Travis Redmond. Jen also showed the champion ram and ewe horned Dorset, her brother Jimmy had the champion ram in the Southdown division, which went on to take grand champion ram over all breeds. Radell Peter's Polled Dorset took reserve champion ram overall breeds.

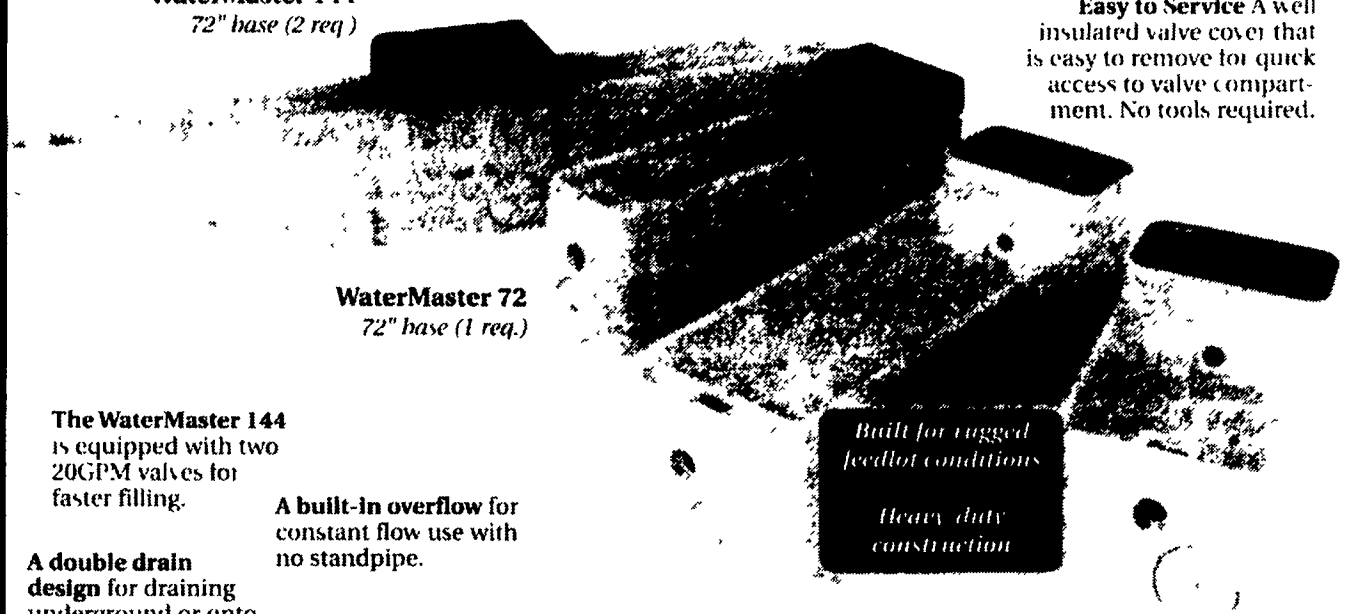
The WaterMaster is designed to easily replace existing steel and concrete waterers.

WaterMaster 144
72" base (2 req.)

Easy to Service A well insulated valve cover that is easy to remove for quick access to valve compartment. No tools required.



WaterMaster 72

A double drain design for draining underground or onto feedlot floor.

WaterMaster 90

WaterMaster 54

Easy to Install and Service Large access doors on each end and lift-out cover on top, stainless steel hardware.

WM 54 and 90 feature a finger-lift (non-locking) cover for ease in servicing.

A water trainer device that encourages new cattle to drink

One of the drain plugs can be used in the valve compartment opening to conserve water during cleaning

2 3/4" opening in the bottom of the valve compartment for use with gravity-style dairy systems.

No Gasket to Freeze A uniquely designed, patented water seal that keeps cold air away from valve, eliminating the need for a rubber gasket which will freeze, crack and tear.

Top Equestrians In Harrisburg Oct. 12-21 For National Horse Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania National Horse Show, one of Pennsylvania's premier sporting events and America's largest indoor all-breed horse show, will conduct its 55th annual 10-day competition Oct. 12-21.

Since its inception in 1945, the event at Harrisburg's State Farm Show Complex, has raised more than $1.4 million for youth literacy, educational and recreational programs through the Harrisburg Kiwanis Youth Foundation.

Each year, hundreds of thousands of hunter, jumper, and equitation riders across the U.S. compete year-long for an invitation to join the best of the best at "The Show Of Champions" in Harrisburg. The Pennsylvania National Horse Show is a celebration of horse sports, featuring more than 1,400 of America's top horses and riders, unique entertainment, shopping, food and family fun.

Ten national championships are decided at the PNHS. The American Horse Shows Association/Black Entertainment Television National Junior Jumper Championship, Saturday night, Oct. 14, is one of only three USA Junior Olympics-Equestrian events, and features America's top under-18 jumper riders. More than 200 young riders culminate a year of competition on Sunday, Oct. 15, as they vie for the American Horse Shows Association/Eisers and Pessoa National Hunter Seat Equitation Medal Championship — one of the few events where the rider, rather than the horse, is judged.

Many of the young national champions go on to represent the U.S. in international and Olympic Grand Prix competition of the type featured at the PNHS nightly Tuesday, Oct. 17 through closing Saturday, Oct. 21. Spectators thrill to America's best Grand Prix jumper riders, including Olympic competitors, striving to win more than $115,000 in prize money by clearing jumps up to five-feet high and six-feet wide.

A week of varied equestrian competition begins Monday, Oct. 16, with Hunt Night, an evening of friendly rivalry for the mid-Atlantic's top fox-hunting clubs. For nearly 150 years, fox-hunting has remained a strong tradition in Pennsylvania, home to more hunts than any other state except Virginia. Teams and individuals test their hunting skills over fences, in the North American Fox-Hunting Horn Blowing Championships, and in races over fences for feisty and adorable Jack Russell terriers. Author Rita Mae Brown, a fox-hunting enthusiast, will make an appearance during Hunt Night.

Spectators will be treated to an amazing variety of equestrian athleticism. High-flying Grand Prix jumpers, fiery, high-stepping American Saddlebreds and their tiny Hackney pony cousins, thundering draft horses in hitches of one to six, easy-going western pleasure horses, and roadster horses and ponies who race around the ring at top speed take turns delighting and entertaining the audience. The $50,000 Budweiser Grand Prix de Penn National, the show's richest and most prestigious event held Saturday night, Oct. 21, will be taped for broadcast on ESPN (the broadcast is scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 12 at 6 p.m.).

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police will present their Musical Ride at the Pennsylvania National Thursday through Sunday nights, Oct. 19-21, their first appearance at the show since 1982. The troupe of 32 horses and riders, with the support of founding sponsor Canadian Pacific, will perform a variety of cavalry drills and intricate formations at the trot and canter, all choreographed to music.

General admission is $10, $5 for seniors and children ages 12 and under, except Oct. 21, when all general admission tickets are $10. Reserved seating is available Grand Prix Night, Saturday, Oct. 21; prices range from $15 to $25. All performance passes with reserved seating Oct. 21 are $100.

BUSH VS. GORE: AGRICULTURAL AGENDAS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

On Tuesday, Nov. 7, you will have an opportunity to vote for our country's next president.

The two major party candidates, Gov. George W. Bush (R) and Vice President Al Gore (D), both have interesting plans for U.S.'s agriculture industry.

Overview: In order to gain the perspective of a broadcast journalist who has interviewed Bush and Gore on agricultural issues, I spoke to Ken Root. Root is the host of "Agri-Talk" (www.agri-talk.com), a syndicated daily radio talk that explores current agricultural issues.

When asked what the number one agricultural issue concerning farmers in this election, Root said farmers would generally favor the candidate who, as president, would do the least in terms of enacting environmental regulations negatively affecting agriculture. Root acknowledges both candidates are concerned with the loss of family farms and have similar plans to take away barriers to exports and build trade relations, but reminds farmers to keep focused on the candidate's environmental plans.

• Gov. George W. Bush's Agenda: Bush supports a market-oriented farm policy, which would respond to market demands rather than government programs. But in order for the agriculture industry to adapt to the challenges of the global marketplace, Bush believes the government should provide a strong safety net to help manage economic downturns. This would include crop insurance reform and tax-deferred Farm and Ranch Management accounts, which would allow farmers to reserve a substantial percentage of their net farm income in a tax deferred account that could be used during downturns.

As part of his overall plan to reduce taxes, Bush supports the elimination of the estate tax, which currently makes it more difficult to pass family farms from one generation to the next. Bush would also like to speed up the development of technologically advanced farm products, such as ethanol, to help strengthen the agriculture community with new exportable goods. Bush believes one avenue in achieving this would be through a permanent extension of the research and development tax credit.

Private property rights are another key issue for Bush, who supports requiring the federal government to evaluate the impact of regulatory initiatives on property rights. He recognizes that burdensome regulations and property laws have a real cost impact to the farm economy. Bush is committed to free trade and the elimination of agricultural export subsidies and tariffs. The restoration of Presidential trade negotiating authority is a key goal he hopes to achieve as President. Bush supports China's entry into the World Trade Organization and will work to allow U.S. products into overseas markets.

• Vice President Al Gore's Agenda: Gore supports changing the Freedom to Farm Act, which he believes will help increase farm income and reduce emergency aid. He would enact counter-cyclical income assistance that attempts to stabilize farm income on a year-to-year basis along with federal insurance policies. To provide a safety net when crop prices and yields fall, Gore would work to increase payments to farmers based on commodity specific five-year averages. Reform for crop insurance is another key goal for Gore. He would work to strengthen the effectiveness and affordability by increasing federal support for insurance.

Gore supports the reduced concentration of agribusiness. He believes America stands to lose many family farms as the ag-industry is even more dominated by large, corporate enterprises. Gore supports efforts for a greater transparency to the marketplace in order to stop price discrimination. Gore said he would enforce antitrust laws to fight anticompetitive practices. He will expand the Packers and Stockyard Act to include poultry and feedlots. Gore supports farmer-owned cooperatives and will help establish new co-ops focused on value-added processing.

Gore also advocates environmentally sound land management of farms as another key goal to achieve clean waterways, pure drinking water, and healthy air. Gore believes this will help stabilize farm income. He will provide incentives for voluntary environmental practices such as conservation incentive payments. Gore supports developing ethanol and other new agriculture-based products to increase the nation's farm income. He would also like to expand trade in agriculture while reducing tariffs. He supports China's entry in the World Trade Organization.

Program Moves Research From The Test Tube To The Front Page

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In the battle for consumers' hearts and minds over what foods are best to eat, recent media reports show that dairy checkoff investments in nutrition research greatly help farmers communicate the goodness of dairy products.

This positive coverage of dairy's nutrition and value is the product of a concerted effort by National Dairy Council® (NDC) and local NDC affiliates, including the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East on behalf of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, to promote the health benefits of dairy foods. This is done by providing consumer media with science-based information that is relevant to today's consumer lifestyles.

"Steps for success begin by compiling the latest health and nutrition research, including those funded by the dairy checkoff," says Debra Summerall, spokesperson for PDPP. "We then analyze and summarize this research into consumer-friendly language."

Recent consumer media coverage includes the March 2000 issue of American Baby magazine (circulation 6.5 million) quotes Journal of American College of Nutrition article, which concludes that consumption of three to four servings of dairy daily "may reduce the risk of stroke, help control blood pressure and ward off kidney stones, colon and breast cancer, and osteoporosis."

In the July 4 issue of Woman's World (circulation 4.2 million), the article "Metabolism-Boosting Secrets Scientists Now Know" advises doubling the Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) for calcium in order to lose body fat, based on checkoff-funded animal studies by Dr. Michael Zemel, a nutrition researcher at the University of Tennessee. Patricia Heaton, who co-stars in the "Everybody Loves Raymond" television comedy series, is quoted as saying that she lost 50-pounds with a diet that included nonfat yogurt and pizzas with nonfat ricotta cheese.

A headline in the Sunday, July 30 issue of Parade magazine (circulation 134 million) reads: "Soft drinks can be hard on bones." Columnist Dr. Isador Rosenfeld advises readers to "go easy on the sodas and drink more skim or fat-free milk."

Other consumer publications have recently featured a wealth of positive headlines proclaiming the merits of milk and dairy products. They include:

- "Health-Boosting Habits Every Woman Should Develop — Drink Milk with your Meals" — April 2000 Woman's World (circulation 4.2 million).
- "Four of five Dentists Recommend Swiss" — May 2000 Men's Health (circulation 5.5 million).
- "got milk? Not Enough" — April 2000 Good Housekeeping (circulation 17 million). The article includes a graphic that lists "kid-friendly" choices of nutritious dairy foods.

The media relations program includes monthly news alerts and a hotline to help media arrange interviews with health and nutrition experts. NDC also distributes newsletters that highlight health benefits of dairy foods and provides media with the latest topics related to dairy's role in nutrition and health. NDC refers media to its award-winning Web site, www.nationaldairycouncil.org, for information on the latest nutrition research from leading national universities and other reputable organizations.

I SEEM TO HAVE LOST A CUSTOMER SOMEPLACE!

John Berry
Lehigh Co.
Ag Marketing Agent

How much is one customer worth? How much does it cost to lose one customer? More than you want to know. More than you can measure in real dollars.

Most people only measure the dollar loss of a sale, or how much revenue was lost for the year. Big mistake. For openers, multiply that times 20 years. Rats! And don't even begin to count the people they could have recommended! Then the real losses begin to pile up.

Besides telling everyone in their immediate vicinity, they will tell all their office, everyone at the next association meeting, everyone at the next annual trade show and convention — and (if you do a real bad job of recovery or service) — report it to people in the industry media or local media.

But that's not the worst, your competition knows — especially the ones who got your lost business. And they are celebrating or doing a war victory dance.

The real cost is the difference between "cost of lost" and "cost to fix." Now measure that against the cost of servicing, fixing, discounting, or replacing the situation, defect or problem when you first learned of it. Seems like a pittance compared to the paragraphs above. The painful part comes when you ask yourself "How did this happen? Could I have prevented this from happening? How can I prevent this from occurring again?"

Have you ever lost a customer? You aren't alone. It's not a one-person battle. It's not a one-idea solution. You need your specific facts before any ideas can be formulated. Here's how to develop a plan.

1. Start by switching places with the customer. Try to use your stuff in their environment. Try to call yourself from their office. Wear their shoes, and walk around in them for a while.

2. Ask your customer brutal questions — ones you don't want to hear the answers to.

3. Get your best team of positive thinkers together. Solve or resolve as a group.

4. Bet big. Identify and know the big picture, and be willing to gamble on a (multifaceted) solution that has consensus from the group.

5. Develop a core-issue base that could have prevented the situation from happening. You only have 10 big, reoccurring problems. List and dissect them. Then benchmark the best practice for resolve. But, remember, prevention is the cheapest medicine. That is the biggest clue for where to start fixing the problem.

6. Get small. Get great little ideas — lots of them — eliminate the dumb ones.

7. Name your solutions. The new "Gitomer Greeting" method. Brand your solutions — especially the cool ideas that bring value to the customer.

8. Ask yourself "what's wow about this solution or idea?" If the answer is "nothing," don't bother doing it.

9. Ask the group how this solution will prevent future occurrence of the same problem. If the answer is "it doesn't," don't bother doing it.

10. Ask the group how this solution will benefit the customer. If the answer is "it doesn't," don't bother doing it.

11. Get closer to the customer's "real" life. Meals and ball games can reveal relevant truths that "arm's length" relationships won't uncover.

12. How do you do this with your existing budget? You can't. You must have a "win back" budget. Funds that are earmarked to fix problems, create resolve, and build goodwill.

13. When you get back in — thank the customer for dumping you. Tell them that without the loss of their business, this innovative solution would never have been possible, and that you are willing to offer some (major?) concessions for a retry at the business using these changes (notice I have not apologized or groveled — customers are less interested in apology than they are in great ideas, recoverable actions, and solutions).

Get real: Know the difference between problem vs. symptom. Losing customers is a symptom. Poor service, poor product, late delivery or back-orders are problems.

Winning back the customer is a huge victory as well as financial gain. There's only one person angry when you get them back — your competition.

Consider Your Business Stakeholders

A good reputation is one of the most precious (and most fragile) possessions of any business. It is a primary component of your competitive advantage in the marketplace. It usually takes many years to build a solid business reputation, yet if management makes poor decisions, an excellent reputation can be lost in a fortnight.

All too often, business owners assume "they are the company," and these owners make decisions in a vacuum without considering the consequences of their actions upon others. They fail to realize one of the keys to building and maintaining a solid reputation is to be constantly aware of (and beholden to) the stakeholders of your business.

Every business has many stakeholders. These are groups of people who either exert an influence on (or are influenced by) the decisions you make. There are two categories of stakeholders: internal and external.

Internal stakeholders. There are four potential classes of internal stakeholders: your management team, your employees, your investors/owners, and (if incorporated) your board of directors.

External stakeholders. There are six potential classes of external stakeholders: your customers, your suppliers, your creditors, government, the general public, and special interest groups.

Whenever you are considering a decision involving difficult alternatives (whether the decision involves business decisions or ethical choices), be sure to consider your stakeholders as part of your decision-making process. If you do not want to negatively impact your company's reputation, you should always weigh the impact of your alternatives upon each of your stakeholder groups as part of your decision-making process.

This consideration should help you facilitate sound business and ethical decisions with the least negative consequences, provided you reach a decision having the strongest positive impact on the greatest number of stakeholders.

Whenever I am faced with such decisions, I reflect on how each of my alternative courses of action will create (or enhance) value for each group of my stakeholders. Suppose I wanted to expand a manufacturing facility, increasing production to keep up with rising demand. I would first consider alternatives that increase value for all of my internal stakeholders and then look at the corresponding potential impact on my external stakeholders.

Suppose a business was considering disposing of hazardous waste by dumping it in a back lot. Although management might initially justify the decision based upon considerable savings in operating costs, ultimate public awareness of the toxic contamination would enrage customers, the general public and special interest groups, significantly tarnishing the company's reputation. This would lead to a barrage of lawsuits from the government (for EPA violations), employees (for health reasons), and investors (angry about diminished value).

If you justify decisions based upon what is best for management and fail to take your other stakeholders into account, you are exposing the company and its reputation to considerable risk. When you make the effort to choose wisely after considering the consequences on all your stakeholders and reacting accordingly, you will minimize that risk.

Dairy Farmers ToMeet At Ronk's Fire Hall

RONKS (Lancaster Co.) — Sam Fisher, dairy farmer from Brogue, is urging all dairy farmers and interested parties to attend an important meeting on Thursday night, Oct. 12 here at the Ronk's Fire Hall. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Fisher said, "With dairy farmer prices still holding around the 1979 level, I think it's time that dairy farmers demand that the U.S. Congress take immediate action to improve milk prices."

Arden Tewksbury, manager of the Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro Ag), will be the main speaker for the evening.

Fisher noted that recent meetings in this area by other organizations "did not offer much hope to our dairy farmers."

Tewksbury has longed urged a new pricing formula for dairy farmers that reflects the average cost of production at the farm level.

The Pro Ag manager said, "Dairy farmers must realize that they are paying nearly $1.60 per hundredweight to have milk converted to cheese, so in essence, dairy farmers are covering a substantial amount of the cheese processor's cost." Why?

Tewksbury said that when the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board established the value of a gallon of milk in the stores, the established price covers the milk bottler's cost.

Tewksbury said, "I think it's time our dairy farmers realize what is being done to them."

Tewksbury concluded by saying, "the wholesale cheese prices completely collapsed last week, sending the barrel prices down to $1.03 per pound."

This means that dairy farmers' prices will start to decease even more later this fall.

For information concerning the meeting, call Sam Fisher, (717) 927-6979.

Barn Side Illustrates Area's Historical Side

MICHELLE RANCK
Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "I have all kinds of people stopping. People stop in all the time," said Arthur L. Reist, owner of Oak Lawn farm. Reist's farm hosts a new, traffic-stopping historical mural on the side of his barn.

Reist is a former history teacher at the nearby Conestoga Valley School District, where he taught for more than 30 years.

Today he is partly retired but helps out on the farm. "I'm busy in historical activities," said Reist, who serves as a resource for area museums.

Reist also wrote the book, "Conestoga Wagon — Masterpiece of the Blacksmith," and owns a large collection of Conestoga wagons and associated equipment.

Besides his knowledge and interest in the famous wagons, Reist hoped to provide a memorial for Jacob Reist, a first generation Reist born in America. Jacob Reist was killed in the war as he transported goods via Conestoga wagon to the troops.

"He was a Swiss Mennonite. He was not a soldier. If he didn't sign up he would have been conscripted to take supplies," said Reist.

The mural is the work of Wayne Fettro of Elizabethtown. After seeing examples of Fettro's sign and building paintings in Elizabethtown, where his daughter resides, Reist decided that he could use the side of his barn as an avenue for public education and contacted the Elizabethtown painter.

The Painting Process

Reist showed the artist pictures and models of Conestoga wagons to ensure accuracy for Fettro's sketch of the wagon.

The high-headed Belgians in the painting were easy to find, as Reist's son, Arthur E. Reist, simply selected a few of the farm's horses from the pasture. Fettro took five rolls of pictures to get the attention-getting stances of the horses pulling the wagon.

"Pearl" provided the model for the wagon's lead horse with her high action and alert look, characteristic of a Conestoga wagon's leader.

"The lead horse should look more alert and seem to see what's going on," said Reist. Other Belgians from the farm filled the remaining roles.

Besides the six horses and striking blue-and-red wagon, the mural includes a mile marker which people often mistake for a tombstone, said Reist.

> "This is for the community, not just for us. It's for people to enjoy. Anybody can come and look at this, that's what it's for."
> Arthur Reist

Fettro enjoys meeting people, which is an important aspect of his job, especially at this particular site, where the public frequently stopped by to converse with Fettro and examine the growing work.

"He could hardly get his painting done, so many people stopped and talked to him," said Reist.

"You would not believe the amount of people that stop by and check it out," said Fettro. "People would read the lettering on the inscription, which had a way of connecting with them. It helped them understand the process," he said.

Fettro also spoke with many of Reist's former students as they stopped with their families to watch the proceedings, another opportunity for Reist to educate the public about the painting, made more personal because the story is family history.

Fettro took five rolls of pictures to provide a model for the painting. Reist's son, Arthur E. Reist, selected a few of the farm's Belgians to pose for the photo shoot.

Tobacco fields provide a backdrop for the scene, a hallmark of the area. This year Oak Lawn farm is producing its 60th and last tobacco crop. The farm is retiring as, according to Reist, the oldest tobacco farm in Pennsylvania.

A Public Painting

"I enjoy meeting people and I learn so much. Every mural I do is another history lesson. Most of the work is dated, for people to reflect on," said Fettro.

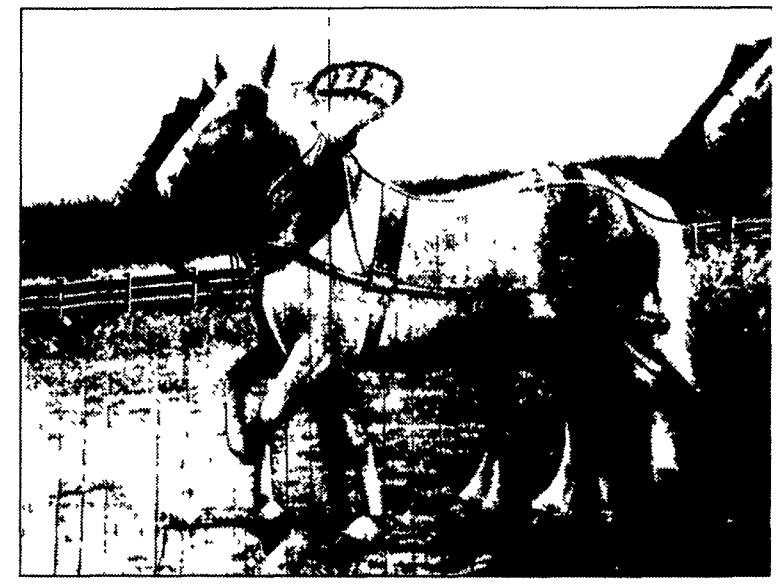
The work was completed over a period of 12-13 days in early September, said Fettro. His next project is in York County with an 1886 scene.

"I got into it (large-scale paintings) because I used to be a billboard painter, but everything is going totally automated, so I had to think of another avenue," said Fettro.

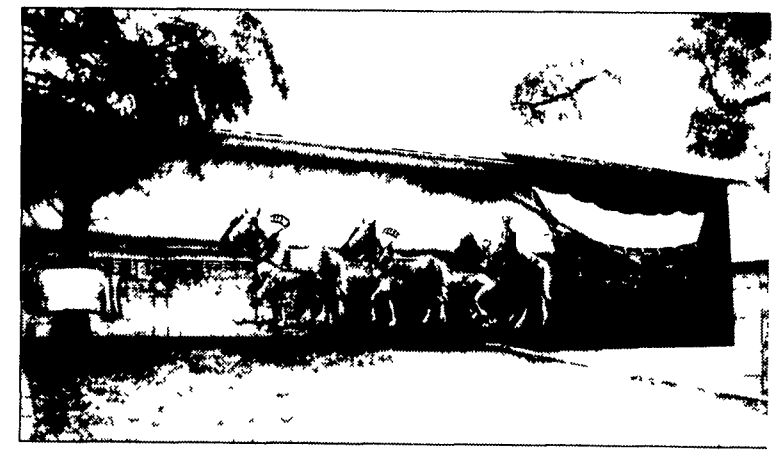
This project was one of Fettro's favorites, as he enjoyed the people he met and worked with, the educational aspect of Reist teaching the public, and the large overhang of the barn which provided him with constant shade.

Part of making the mural historically accurate was attention to detail. For example, according to Reist, the "jockey stick" in the picture which runs from the lead horse to the offside horse helped to direct the offside horse and consequently the entire team. The driver sat on the wheel horse on the left side to guide the team, a forerunner to today's cars, which are also set up with the steering wheel on the left.

"They always had the smartest horse as the lead horse," said Reist. "A teamster sat on the wheel horse and could drive six horses with one line."



Above, Fettro used pictures of Oak Lawn's "Pearl" to paint the wagon's lead horse. Pearl's intelligent demeanor is characteristic of a Conestoga wagon's leader. "The lead horse should look more alert and seem to see what's going on," said Reist.



Reist has used his barn to create an outdoor educational exhibit for passersby. "Every mural I do is another history lesson," says painter Wayne Fettro, Elizabethtown. According to Fettro the work was completed over a period of 12-13 days in early September.

One of the biggest challenges, according to Fettro, was making sure that "everything was accurate to that timeframe, the way they made the harness, or how they made the wagon. I learned quite a bit."

Conestoga Wagon History

"Two of the most important contributions to early America were the Conestoga wagon and the Pennsylvania rifle, and they were both developed and made in this area," said Reist.

The wagons, said Reist, were freight vehicles, the "tractor trailers" of the day. The larger wagons carried 4-5 tons of commodities such as produce, spices, rum, building materials or iron. Not a passenger vehicle, the wagons carried goods from Lancaster to Philadelphia. "They traveled 12 to 15 miles a day on very bad roads," said Reist.

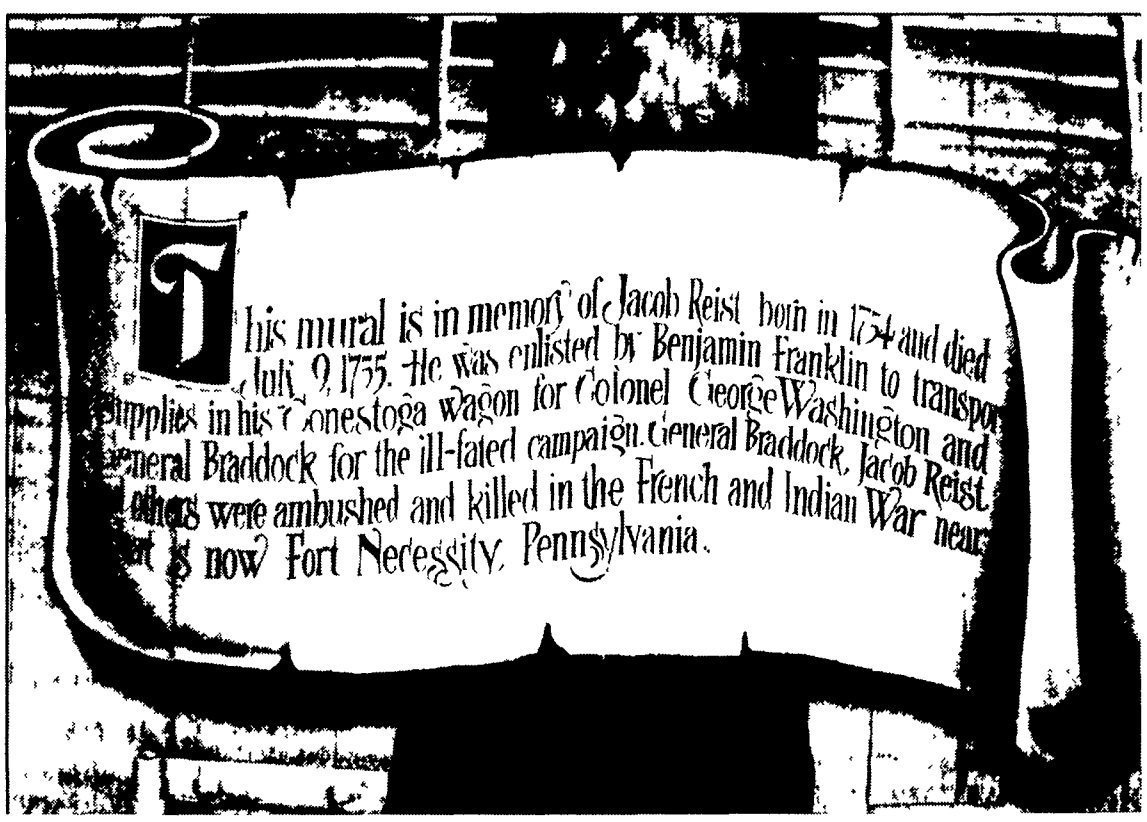
"Pennsylvania was the breadbasket of the colonies," said Reist. Wagon teamsters hauled freight to Philadelphia, a five-day trip one way.

The wagons also hauled freight to West Virginia. En route, the teamsters smoked tobacco grown in Lancaster County, which led to the nickname "Stogie," short for "Conestoga."

Reist also explained the brass bells dangling from the harness above the horses. "If something happened during the trip to the wagon, they didn't pull out their credit cards, they had to use these bells, which they hated to lose," said Reist. This method of emergency payment gave rise to the well-known saying, "Come home with your bells on."

A century farm, Oak Lawn has been in the family's name since 1843. Reist and his wife, Marian, are the fifth generation and now his son, Art, Art's wife Rachael, and their children reside on the 60-acre farm. Along with tobacco, they raise several crops and prizewinning Belgian horses.

The farm is located in Manheim Township across from Lancaster Bible College.



This mural is in memory of Jacob Reist born in 1754 and died
July 9, 1755. He was enlisted by Benjamin Franklin to transpo supplies in his Conestoga wagon for Colonel George Washington and General Braddock for the ill-fated campaign. General Braddock, Jacob Reist others were ambushed and killed in the French and Indian War near it is now Fort Necessity, Pennsylvania.

The painting provides a memorial for Jacob Reist, a first generation Reist born in America. Jacob Reist was killed in the war as he transported goods via Conestoga wagon to the troops.

Howcrest Holstein Takes Top Place At Lampeter

Lampeter's dairy champs; Tim Graver, Pequea, holds the Jersey champion for James Findley; Shawn Bachman, Millersville, holds the Milking Shorthorn champion for Findley; James Findley, Kirkwood, holds the Ayrshire champ; Lori Hess, Pequea, had the champion Brown Swiss; and Lindsey Howard, Willow Street, won overall champion with her Holstein.

Lindsey Howard, Willow Street, took home overall grand champion honors at Lampeter's dairy show. Howard, 15, is from Howcrest Holsteins, a 40-head dairy farm in Willow Street.

MICHELLE RANCK
Farming Staff

WEST LAMPETER (Lancaster Co.) — About 30 head of Holsteins and an equal number of colored breeds competed in the West Lampeter Community Fair Dairy Show.

"There was good quality through all the breeds," said judge Matt Wanner.

"What I'm selecting for in the supreme champion is the animal that to me best fits the ideal of that breed," said Wanner.

According to Wanner, the Ayrshire breed is known to be strong and robust with correct feet and legs and a well-attached udder. The Brown Swiss is also known for its sound feet and legs.

Holsteins, said Wanner, are traditionally the largest breed, with great size, scale, depth, power, and blooming capacity. Jerseys are extremely efficient, with high butterfat and protein components in the milk they produce.

The Milking Shorthorn, said Wanner, is a dual purpose breed which leads to the animals' strength, substance, and weight while still being a "very dairy cow."

Lindsey Howard's Holstein caught the eye of Wanner for the supreme champion placing.

"She has tremendous frame, balance, style, a high seam down the udder, and correct feet and legs which enable her to walk around the ring so gracefully," said Wanner.

Howard, 15, of Howcrest Holsteins, hails from a 40-head dairy farm in Willow Street. She is in the 10th grade at Lampeter Strasburg School District.

Besides the dairy ring, Howard tried her hand at raising beef this year for the first time, which she also showed at the Lampeter fair and earned a second place.

Out of four of her own animals, Howard brought 'Charlyse" to the fair, as the cow exhibited the largest frame and most dairy character, according to Howard, who has been showing as a 4-H'er for six years.

Matt Wanner of Pride-N-Joy Farm, Narvon, judged the event. A Penn State graduate, Wanner has experience on the collegiate judging team and also judged many shows during his graduate years as he studied genetics at Penn State.

He judges 1-3 shows a year and works full-time at the 400-cow family operation.

The number of Ayrshires increased by one during the afternoon Holstein show. Owner James Findley showed the expectant mother in the dry cow class earlier in the afternoon before the heifer made an arrival.

"She was due today, but she wasn't bagging up and I was planning to take her home tonight," said Findley. "I showed in the Holstein dry cow class, pulled the calf, and went into the ring with a 4-year-old," said Findley.

Farmers Union Calls For Antitrust Review Of IBP Deal

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In letters to the Departments of Justice (DOJ) and Agriculture (USDA), National Farmers Union (NFU) called for investigation of a proposed buyout of IBP, Inc., stock by an investment group that includes Archer Daniels Midland, Co., (ADM).

This deal between two of the largest agribusiness processors would create a highly concentrated, vertically integrated food production system that would decrease competition and compromise the market power of farmers and ranchers trying to receive fair market prices in an already overly-concentrated industry, according to NFU.

"What America's farmers and ranchers need is more competition, not more concentration," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "This clearly illustrates the need for vigorous antitrust enforcement."

Farmers Union is continuing its call for fair and open competition in the marketplace. IBP is the largest producer of fresh beef and ADM is one of the largest feed producers in the world, among its many agriculture processing endeavors. This business combination illustrates the need to ensure the antitrust enforcement review and authority of DOJ and USDA is adequate.

Farmers Union will ask the agencies to investigate this deal with regard to its antitrust implications as well as the economic impact this merger has on producer market opportunities and prices.

"This deal has great potential to seriously harm farmers and ranchers," said Swenson.

Featured Recipe

Roasts, chops, ribs, cubes, stirps, and cutlets make up the six basic shapes of fresh pork. Each of these shapes, with bones or boneless, can be the basis for almost any dish.

Unlike the pork of the past, today's pork should not be overcooked. Cooking to medium preserves the tenderness of meat. Pork's natural juices lend wonderful flavor and texture to the meat and at medium doneness those juices are at their tastiest. Overcooking drains the juices and makes the meat tougher and less flavorful than desired or necessary.

For best results, use a meat thermometer. This works best with largeer shapes like roasts. When the temperature reaches 160 degrees Fahrenheit, the meat is medium done. When checking the doneness of smaller shapes, look for just a blush of pink and lots of juice. If no juice is present, it's a sure sign that you've overdone it.

Today's featured recipe is made with a roast, a large cut of meat from the leg. Roasts are also perfect for planned leftovers to use in sandwiches, salads, and pasta dishes.

After you make this roast, use the leftovers for Pork Sanwiches with Caramelized Onion Relish, which is included in today's selection of recipes.

HERBED FRESH HAM WITH SAVORY GRAVY

6-8 pound boneless pork leg roast, tied not netted
¼ cup Dijon mustard, divided
1 cup plain dry bread crumbs
6 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley, divided
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 tablespoons fresh rosemary leaves, crushed
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
water
1½ cups apple juice

Trim excess fat from fresh ham; spread evenly with ½ cup mustard.

Mix bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons parsley, oil, rosemary, salt, and pepper. Press crumb mixture evenly over fresh pork. Tent with foil.

Roast at 350 degrees for 1½ hours; remove foil. Roast for 1½ hours more or until meat thermometer registers 155 degrees internal temperature, adding water to roasting pan as needed.

Remove meat from pan; let rest, loosley covered, for 10 to 15 minutes. While ham is resting, drain pan drippings into measuring cup, pouring off excess fat.

Add juice and pan drippings to roasting pan. Set over two burners, if necessary, and bring to boil over medium heat, stirring to loosen any browned bits from pan. Reduce heat to low; simmer for 10 minutes. Thicken gravy if desired. Stir in remaining mustard and parsley; heat through.

Serve ham with gravy.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

On this rainy morning, I decided to read my diary from 50 years ago. You see, I've written everyday since I was 17 years old. I wish that I had started sooner.

Many things have changed since we started farming and yet I'm surprised to read that many things are the same. The first week in October, 50 years ago, I was expecting our second child. Our first little girl was two years old and she tried to help with everything. This included pulling carrots, beets, and celery from the garden when I did not want her to.

Then as now, there was always mending to be done. I've always been a person who puts a patch on a patch when mending overalls. My husband went away to see his parents quite often, and he still thinks of places to go most everyday. Another thing that has not changed is the fact that he picks up a lot of black walnuts. Since he made a contraption to hull the nuts, I no longer sit and do it by hand.

When I think of what has changed, the first thing that I remember is my old washing machine with a wringer on top. I filled it with hot water by hand and then carried buckets full outside to empty it when the washing was finished. I kept careful records, even as I do today, and I see that very little was frozen but almost 300 quart was canned. I surely remember those beans cooking for three hours in the big blue canner.

We had a lot more company then, who just dropped in anytime, than we do today. Now people feel they must phone first. Then they often stayed for meals and to use an expression, "made themselves at home."

One thing that I do not miss is the milking equipment that I washed every morning for 20 years. Some things have changed for the better.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

What makes an heirloom...an heirloom?

Is it age? Is it beauty? Is it historical significance, functionality, timelessness of design?

Or is it in the eye of the beholder?

There's an "heirloom" parked on the windowsill behind our kitchen sink. At least its an heirloom in the eye of this beholder. But no antique dealers are likely to make a beeline trying to acquire it from me.

My heirloom is a 10-inch, white, stoneware pitcher, a classic design of a once-ordinary household item. It's the sort of pitcher one would see on a museum or restored historic-site visit, often paired with a companion white, stoneware basin located at a handy spot for washing up.

Or maybe it was used for serving cold milk or chilled water. Or steaming, hot gravy.

It's history is a mystery.

But it arrived at our house by way of a not-unfamiliar route for occasional heirlooms. A junkpile. From which The Farmer rescued it, knowing my affinity for such items.

The reason the white, stoneware pitcher had ended up on a junkpile, rather than someone's prized antique display case, is glaringly obvious. It has a half-inch, V-shaped gap broken out of the spout. The rough edges of the break have grown dark and ugly with age, and tiny, dark, cracks run from the break down toward the body of the pitcher.

A second reason — possibly — that the pitcher did not cross an auction block or command a sum of money is that it well may have been an ordinary, everyday, piece of kitchenware of the time, purchased at a general store or five-and-ten, equivalent of today's "dollar" stores. It's not delicate English china or heavy, hand-thrown stoneware.

Nevertheless, the somewhat faded, somewhat cracked pitcher remains an heirloom to me, simply because it once belonged to a talented acquaintance I admired very much. And it sees regular use here, not for milk or ice water or gravy or washing up.

With a bouquet of flowers plunked into the stoneware pitcher, the chunk broken out of the spout isn't even visible. And, it's the perfect "vase" for displaying flowers in our country-farmhouse decor.

While rooting through a cupboard a few days ago, trying to organize and stack heavy-duty plasticware storage containers — none of which want to fit into the other — another heirloom tumbled out and nearly "bonked" my toe. This one is from family, a hand-crafted, wooden rolling pin lovingly used to bake by kinfolk countrycooks a few generations ago.

It's one of those quirky twists of fate that a handcrafted rolling pin should end up in the kitchen of a cook who dotes on microwaving, converted a few years ago to instant mashed potatoes (fixed with lots of whole milk and real butter) and rolls out dough for anything maybe once a year. By comparison to the junked stoneware pitcher, the rolling pin is an heirloom grossly underemployed.

For my breakfast muffin this morning, I dug a dessert-sized plate out of a stack in another cupboard, from a supply turned over years ago by my mom. White, with a small floral pattern around the edge, these little dishes originated as freebies in cartons of dry oatmeal, I'm told, and are probably well over 50-years-old. They match some petite, shallow dessert bowls of the same source and vintage.

Etched in my brain is an anecdote I once read, about a woman who recalled a dream. In the dream, her husband, a widower, had remarried, and her successor was enjoying using all the prized, family heirlooms she had carefully "saved" hidden away for years.

I'm using — not saving — the heirlooms that have been passed down. Even the rolling pin, now and then.

And, when I'm gone, I hope someone else finds use for the few heirlooms they may inherit — by desire or default.

If I don't manage to drop them first.

Given my history of damage to breakables, that chipped-lip pitcher is probably living on borrowed time.

Microwave Cooking For One Or Two

Cooking for one or two may be a new experience. Most likely you were cooking for a family of three or more but as life goes on for whatever reason you now find yourself cooking for one or two. The following information will help resolve some of the dilemmas associated with cooking in smaller quantities and show you how to make the most of your microwave to do so.

First, it is important to use the proper utensils. A small amount of food on a large plate will not cook properly. You probably already have smaller size dishes such as custard cups, soup bowls, and casseroles. But, you might want to purchase a 15- or 20-ounce casserole, a 7-inch pie plate, a small quiche dish, and a 6½-inch browning dish if you don't already have them. Be sure all utensils are microwave safe. The depth of a container is as important as capacity. Food in a deeper dish takes longer to microwave. A shallow dish exposes more food surface to microwave energy. Round shapes microwave more evenly than squares or rectangles. Microwaves penetrate from each side of a corner of a square dish, therefore concentrating more energy or heat in a corner which may then overcook.

When microwaving for one or two it is important to remember how much you will need to cook at one time. After making your selection, microwave the foods that take the longest first. In some cases, you can put several things in at one time as long as they are arranged in a ring, leaving the center open so energy can penetrate from all sides.

Tight-skinned vegetables, like potatoes or squash, are sometimes cooked in their skins. Prick the skins to allow excess steam to escape or they might burst during cooking. Large, whole vegetables, like corn on the cob, should be turned over and rearranged so all will receive equal energy.

Microwaving brings out the natural flavor in meat. It remains jucy because it is not exposed to dry, hot air.

Breakfast for one or two is quick and easy to prepare in a microwave oven and with a lot less clean-up. You can microwave, serve and eat from the same dish. Let's try bacon and eggs. Since bacon varies in thickness the cooking time will be different. Bacon shrinks less and needs less attention when cooked in a microwave. Boiled eggs must be cooked conventionally since the yolk of the egg contains more fat than the white and attracts more energy. If you microwave an egg until the white is set, the yolk will toughen. Never microwave an egg in its shell because steam builds up and the egg will burst.

Microwave-scrambled eggs are fluffier than conventionally scrambled. Remove them from the oven when they still look underdone. Overcooking makes them rubbery.

There are many great cookbooks on the market about Microwave Cooking for One or Two.

The following recipes can stretch your imagination because you can vary all the ingredients to satisfy your own tastebuds as well as someone elses.

Harvard Graduate Farms, Teaches, Directs

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford County) — Frank Antonson spent his growing up summers in Bedford County. He has traveled the world over and still declares Bedford to be "the most beautiful spot in the world."

A Bedford middle school teacher, Frank teaches humanities andlanguage. He speaks five languages including English, Portuguese, Spanish, French, and German.

The Antonsons live on the farm they bought from Frank's uncle and raise beef cattle.

But, Frank's true love is the Dutch Corner Community Choir which he formed and directs. Practice is held every Monday evening in the room Frank added to their home for the choir.

> "God is very democratic in his dispersal of talent. Therefore, we have people in the country who can sing just as beautifully as those in the big cities."
> Frank Antonson

Almost nothing is too difficult for this group of rural singers (a number of them farmers) to undertake. In the spring, they are planning to do Mendelssohn's "Elijah." For Christmas, they will perform the Messiah, which will be free and open to the public

The group performs for churches, clubs, and does special events such as a concert in the Bedford Square in July. They will be a part of a special talent show being presented by the Pennsylvania Consort in late October.

Frank organized the choir in 1982 at St. John's Lutheran Church in Cessna. "I knew there was a lot of talent here," Frank says. "God is very democratic in his dispersal of talent. Therefore, we have people in the country who can sing just as beautifully as those in the big cities. They often need an outlet to prove it."

"In a large choir, you can lean on someone else. Put an average alto in the middle of a large section of outstanding altos and she can sing well. But, on her own, she might have trouble. That's what you quickly learn with the Dutch Corner group," Antonson said. From left are alto singers Nancy Koontz, Michal Wiles. Connie Claycomb, Donna Zubak, and Allyson Dehmke.

The group uses no accompaniment for performances. To get over the difficult practice hurdles, Terry Osman, a member of the group plays the baby grand piano located in the Antonson "singing room." Terry also writes special numbers for the choir.

Baroque, secular, and religious music are all included in the repertoire. "We seldom sing 20th Century numbers," Frank said. "But, we can, and on rare occasions, we do."

There are no tryouts for the choir, however, some come and soon learn it is too difficult for his or her individual talent. "Most of the time, we let the individual be the judge of that," Frank explained.

"We have folks come from large city choirs who thought this would be a piece of cake. They soon learn otherwise. In a large choir, you can lean on someone else. Put an average alto in the middle of a large section of outstanding altos and she can sing well. But, on her own, she might have trouble. That's what you quickly learn with the Dutch Corner group."

Membership changes frequently as singers find other interests, move away, or even become ill. Connie Claycomb, wife of retired farmer Fred Claycomb, and Carolyn Kegg would come closest to being charter members.

Few are music majors or have even had professional training, but under Frank's leadership, they work hard and they learn. "I hardly let them breathe for an hour and a half every Monday evening," Frank admits. "There is, however, time afterwards for some fun and few good-natured comments are hurled at the driven director who often comes to practice directly from tending his cattle.

The teacher/farmer's most recently accomplishment has been applying for and receiving a $350 grant from the Pennsylvania Rural Arts Alliance. It had to be used to nurture a quartet of young people. These include students Willie Snyder, Joy Thomas, Deanna Reffner, and Chris Bullington.

Ages of the choir vary from high school students to senior citizens.

Making Hay Inside The House With Strawboard/Agrifiber

(NAPSI) — There's more wheat in the bread drawer these days as the use of agrifiber products rises on the homefront. Once just the kernel of an idea, agricultural fiber-based products are now on their way to becoming staples for a wide range of interior uses.

Panels and boards made from wheat straw, sugar cane and other agricultural crops are appearing everywhere from a showcase straw house in Montreal to kitchen and bath cabinets and interior furnishings across North America. Engineered to meet or exceed performance standards of industrial-grade particleboard, these agrifiber products are now a viable option for a host of applications.

A custom-order manufacturer in Portland, Oregon, for example, first introduced wheatboard as a substrate in one kitchen cabinet collection over a year ago. Not only did the new agrifiber line garner an industry product innovation award, but the overall performance results were so successful that today the company uses wheatboard in all its kitchen and bath cabinets.

"Wheatboard is light, strong, and repels moisture well," explains Rick Fields, vice president and general manager, Neil Kelly Cabinets. "We couldn't find any reason not to use it."

A high-profile Canadian building also proves that agrifiber products are no straw in the wind, but an up-and-coming option. The first straw house in downtown Montreal features strawboard from Isobord Enterprises throughout its 2,000-square-foot design. The ecological home, completed last summer as part of the Affordability and Choice Today (ACT) Program for housing innovation, boasts strawboard on wall paneling, cabinets, baseboards and shelving.

Products made from annually renewable resources have been in the development stage for years. Researchers at Iowa State University, for example, have been working for nearly a decade to find ways to use agricultural materials like cornstalks to manufacture composite panels. Today, wheatboard and other agrifiber products have successfully entered the consumer market and are coming into their own. They are used increasingly in the manufacture of office and residential furniture, kitchen cabinets, case goods and other applications. They are now also widely available at home supply stores like Lowes and Home Depot throughout the United States and Canada.

Consumers aren't likely to notice any visible difference with these crop-based boards, although they may pick up on the light weight of the products, which makes them easy to work with. However, customers may well notice a difference in their pocket books, as cost benefits draw manufacturers to agrifiber products.

One ready-to-assemble (RTA) furniture manufacturer began using strawboard as a component for its home office and home entertainment designs two years ago because of its competitive price. "This allows us to offer a cost-effective product to the customer," says Derek Okada, president, Talon Systems, Inc.

Strawboard performs as an equal with other tried-and-true composite boards, according to Okada. "We intermix straw fiber particleboard, medium density fiberboard (MDF), and wood fiber particleboard," he notes.

Although their potential has only begun to be tapped, agrifiber products are already blossoming on the homefront, providing consumers greater options than ever before.

Barner's Church Prepares Apple Butter Boil

LIVERPOOL (Perry Co.) — As the leaves start to turn colors and the air turns cool, a small country church starts to prepare for their annual Apple Butter Boil. About 40 miles up the Susquehanna River from Harrisburg, and just a few miles back in the hills from the tiny riverside town of Liverpool, sits a red brick church known as St. John's (Barner's) Lutheran Church. On Oct. 14, the Church will hold their 49th annual Apple Butter Boil.

In the weeks prior to this event, much preparation is needed. There is planning and ordering and advertising. There is wood to be gotten for the boiling of the apple butter, all foods are prepared , snitzing (paring and coring of apples for the apple butter) by many in the community, and much other work detail.

As many sleep through the midnight hours, the men will be putting on the freshly pressed cider to boil it down over the open fires. As dawn breaks through the night sky, the first bucket of snitz (sliced apples) is added to the boiled-down cider. By the time the first kettle is ready, the church grove is buzzing with activity. The women gather to prepare the meals and set up the craft table. By 9:30 a.m., all is ready for the people who make the annual pilgrimage to this 200-year-old church for a day of fellowship, fun, and history.

The event includes apple butter boiling, a craft table, a concession stand, and a Dutch dinner of Bott-Boi (pot pie) with all the trimmings. The apple butter is boiled in antique copper kettles and is for sale on the grounds. Bring your own jars. The craft table is set up in the church grove. Many members donate items for sale that demonstrate their talents.

The concession stand sells homemade chicken corn soup, homemade ham and bean soup, bar-be-cue sandwiches, hot dogs, homemade pies and ice cream, and the famous hot apple butter sundaes. The highlight of the day is the Dutch dinner, which includes chicken or beef pot pie, corn, peas, red beets, pickles, coleslaw, freshly made apple butter, schmier-kase, and homestyle bread.

If you want to make the pilgrimage to the little red brick church that's perched atop a hill in Perry County, the directions are simple. Take Routes 11 and 15 to Liverpool, Pa. Turn left onto Route 17. About one mile from Liverpool, turn right onto Route 235. Follow the apple butter signs to the Church on the hill. Come and enjoy how our ancestors boiled apple butter.

QUESTION — Charles Cramer, New Market, Md., would like a copy of the "Lancaster Level Flo Cookbook (Recipes From the Land of the Pennsylvania Dutch)." His family enjoyed a recipe that they believe was originally published in this 1970's cookbook. The potato salad recipe had a delicious salad dressing.

QUESTION — A Newburg reader would like recipes for jams and jellies or fruit spreads without sugar or artificial sweetener. She'd like recipes that taste similar to brands such as Polaner's All Fruit, Spreadable Fruit, or Smucker's Simply 100% Fruit.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know why there are strings and other sediments that attach to mixer beaters while mashing potatoes. Irvin Conover, Gettysburg, writes that the problem stems to the potato, which either got too cold or frozen. Potatoes that got too cold generally have a black ring under the skin, or, are watery if frozen.

Thanks to Fawn Bartleson, Martins Creek, for writing that the reader isn't using the wrong potato or the wrong speed, but the wrong too. When potatoes are boiled, the starch granules swell. If those cells are repeatedly and vigorousl broken with electric beaters or food processors, too much starch is released and you have paste. To avoid this, cook the potatoes by simmering. Let cool at least 30 minutes. When ready to mash, bring them to a boil quickly again and drain. Add as much butter and hot milk (which has been brought to a near boil) as desired. Mash, don't use electric appliances to beat.

ANSWER — Donna Balascad wrote that she tasted a wonderful mint tea at the Hay Creek Fall Festival. The tea was yellow and looked like lemonade. Donna has a garden filled with mint and doesn't know what to do with it. Anyone able to help her? Thanks to several readers who sent recipes to help out Donna. Here is one from Walter Durling, who e-mailed that the tea was served at his parents' 50 anniversary, and many requested the recipe, which orginally was submitted by Ann Kreider of Viv's Varieties and printed in the cookbook, "Recipes from Central Market."

Orange and Lemon Iced Meadow Tea

2½ cups water
2 cups sugar
1 cup meadow tea (mint) leaves, firmly packed (use only tender tips and leaves)
12-ounces frozen lemonade concentrate
4-ounces frozen orange juice concentrate

Boil water and sugar for 5 minutes. Pour water over tea. Cover tightly. Let stand for one hour. Strain and squeeze out tea leaves. Add frozen lemonade and orange juice to tea water to make concentrate. When serving, dilute one part concentrate with two parts water.

Thanks to Pat Sweetman from Stonehaus Herb Farm, who sends many ideas for those who have excess mint. Pat writes that mint often gets a bad rap because it is so prolific. If you grow it in a bit of shade, it won't take over so easily. Mint tea is either pale yellow or light tan depending on the type of mint grown and how you prepare it. The general consensus for the best mint tea is either made with apple mint of chocolate mint. Just fill a pitcher up with it and pour water over it and let it sit in the sun for a few hours — tastes absolutely wonderful.

Some mints have too much camphor in them and are not so great tasting. Most mints lose most of their flavor when dried, but peppermint is a good one to dry and keep for use in the winter. A cup of mint tea after dinner is a good tummy settler. Dried mint is good as part of a bath bag that you put in your tub or shower to wake you in the mornings. Add dried mint to cream and let it sit overnight before whipping it — adds great flavor as a topping for pound cake.

The strong fragrance of mint is supposed to keep mice away. Because the fragrance fades as it dries, you must change often; however, Pat writes that she hasn't had much success with using it as a mouse deterrent. Be careful with mint if you have sheep. Mint can take over sunny places and sheep won't eat it. If you plant it too close to a sheep pasture, it will ruin your pasture. Mint farmers of the Northwest rent sheep to eat the weeds in their mint fields knowing the mint is safe from sheep.

You can use dried peppermint when you create castile soaps. If you use enough the soap will be green, but if you use too much mint, the soap will turn black — but still smell good.

Mint hybridizes itself very easily so it may be hard to tell just what type of mint you have.

Thanks to Erla Shirk, Ephrata, who sent recipes to can and to freeze tea for use during winter months.

Tea Concentrate To Freeze

1 quart tightly packed tea leaves
4 quarts boiling water
2-3 cups sugar

Steep tea in boiling water for 15 minutes. Teka tea out and add sugar. Boil 15 minutes. Cool and freeze. Mix together one quart concentrate to 3 quarts water.

Tea Concentrate To Can

6 quarts boiling water
6 cups loose tea

Boil water, remove from heat. Add loose tea and let tea set for 15 minutes. Strain. Add 10 cups sugar and dissolve. Put in quart jars and add 1 teaspoon lemon juice (keeps tea from getting dark) to each quart. Process in boiling water bath for 20 minutes. One quart concentrate will make one gallon tea. Tastes just like fresh tea.

ANSWER — L. Groff, Denver, wanted a recipe for pie made with ground cherries. Thanks to Erla Shirk, Ephrata, and Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, for sending recipes.

Ground Cherry Pie

1½ to 2 cups washed, ground cherries
Put into saucepan, add enough water to cover cherries. Add:
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup brown sugar
Pinch salt

Bring mixture to a boil, thicken with Clear Jel. Reduce heat and boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat and add one tablespoon butter. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake at 450 degrees until golden brown.

Ground Cherry Pie

Line pastry crust in deep 9-inch pie dish. Sprinkle pie shell with a mixture of 1 tablespoon flour and 1 tablespoon sugar before adding the following mixture:

3-4 cups ground cherries
¼ cup light Karo or honey
⅓ cup flour or 3 tablespoons minute tapioca
½ cup sugar or honey

Top with pastry crust. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake an additional 25 minutes.

Shirley shares this hint: Before frost hits, pull entire bush up containing berries that have not fully ripen. Hang bush by root in barn. Place a plastic tablecloth beneath the bush to catch berries that will fall as they ripen.

ANSWER — Pat Elligson, Millers, Md., wanted a recipe for Sweet and Sour Cucumber Salad that tastes like that served at the Columbia Family Restaurant, Columbia. Thanks to Shirley Schwoner, Wysox, for sending this recipe.

Sweet and Sour Cucumber Salad

Mix together:

1 cup water
½ cup white vinegar
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery seed

Add sliced cucumbers and onions. May add sliced tomatoes if desired.

ANSWER — Harry requested an apple dumpling recipe in which the apples are not baked but boiled or steamed. Thanks to Shirley Schwoener, Wysox, for sending a recipe.

Boiled Apple Dumplings

Mix together
2½ cups biscuit mix
⅔ cup water

Roll out dough into four rounds. Core and peel 4 apples. Stuff dough with apples sprinkled with brown sugar and cinnamon to taste. Top with a little butter. Fold dough around apples, moistening folds with water so they stick together.

In large Dutch oven or pan, bring salted water to a rolling boil. Drop dumplings into water and boil 20 minutes.

You can substitute pie dough for the biscuit mixture, but Shirley said the biscuit mixture is quicker and works just as well.

ANSWER — Elaine Fyock, Windber, requested a cookie recipe called Cow Patties and other dessert and snack recipes with a cute farm title. Thanks to Dorothy Stoms, Deerfield St., N.J.; Mildred Miller, Hershey; Pat Elligson, Millers, Md.; S. Duggan, Swanton, Md., and others for sending the same Cow Pie recipe. Dorothy writes that a barnyard birthday party would not be complete without cow pies.

Cow Pies

2 cups milk chocolate chips
1 tablespoon shortening
½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped slivered almonds

In a double boiler over simmering water, melt chocolate chips and shortening, stirring until smooth. Remove from heat, stir in raisins and almonds. Drop by tablespoons onto waxed paper. Chill until ready to serve. Yields 2 dozen.

Lancaster County Beef Producers Help Busy Moms Tackle Hectic Schedules

MIDDLETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — It's back-to-school time for many American households. What busy moms want for their families is simple — great-tasting, convenient meal options with a healthy spin — meals that the whole family can enjoy and she can feel good about serving. Thanks in part to the beef industry, food editors across the country are bringing moms ideas for beef meals that can keep hectic schedules from turning into hectic mealtimes.

Lancaster County beef producers, through investments in the $1-per-head beef checkoff program, are helping support distribution of information on beef's nutrition and convenience to magazines and newspapers across the country. And what's more, they're doing it with tremendous success. During the past year, articles and recipes developed with assistance from the beef checkoff program have resulted in 5,250 article placements in publications with a combined circulation of 803 million.

The checkoff-funded food communications program is intended to increase positive coverage of beef in the U.S. media while establishing and strengthening key relationships with editors and other food writers.

"Food editors are a key link between the industry and the consumer," says Paul Slayton, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council. "Because they determine the information that flows through their publications, they influence many popular food and cooking trends."

Convenience-oriented food communications efforts alone were responsible for more than 1,160 article placements in magazines and newspapers with a combined circulation of 68.7 million since the beginning of October 1999.

The beef industry is using the food communications program to get the word out about beef's wholesome nutrition and convenience.

"We need to continue to show how our product fits the lives of consumers today," adds Slayton. "Our checkoff-funded food communications efforts are part of a strategy to do that."

Here are two quick beef recipes that also provide your family with essential nutrients protein, iron, zinc and B-vitamins.

New Sorghum Maze Opens In Blair County

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

ROARING SPRING (Blair County) — Kids of all ages can enjoy what is probably Pennsylvania's newest maze located behind the Hinish Farm Market in Roaring Spring.

"We've been visiting other mazes and decided to try one on a smaller scale," says Neil Hinish. "It was my wife, Cindy, and I who actually cut through the trail.

Planning way ahead, the Hinish family planted more then seven acres of sorghum in June. "We knew it would grow fast and actually hoped it would get taller then it has," explains Neil as he gestures to the eight-foot plants. "Also, recent hard rains have taken some of the stalks down, more then we had hoped. But, everyone still seems to be having a good time."

When the stalks were about knee high, Neil mowed the first path. As the stalks grew, either he or Cindy continued with the pathway. The path is approximately 15-inches wide.

Since the Hinish Farm grows mostly apples, they decided to stick with an apple theme. Arriving at the maze, visitors are given a sheet of paper with pictures of Johnny Appleseed and colors listed below. The maze wanderer must take stickers from each location to attach to the sheet.

Kate Bassler and Mallory Burns, both of Roaring Spring, enjoy the Hinish Maze on a cloudy Sunday afternoon.

If a child, age 10 or under, finds all the stickers, he or she is treated to a cookie at the farm market bakery. Adults who complete the scavenger hunt can enter a weekly drawing for prizes. First prize will be a fresh fruit pie baked at the Hinish bakery or a T-shirt, and second prize is a gift certificate.

There are colored flags available if anyone has a fear of getting lost forever. "Actually," says Joe Feather, a young attendant, "We keep track of everyone who enters the maze. If they don't come out in a couple of hours, we would go look for them."

To date the shortest amount of time in completing the maze has been 20 minutes. The longest has been an hour and 45 minutes. Average is about 40 to 45 minutes.

"So far we are pleased with the success," says Neil. "We have had teens and a lot of families with small children and are getting some youth and Scout groups." "We thought we could get some real excitement for the older kids by holding a flashlight hunt. We plan to do one on Halloween eve and maybe another prior to that."

Folks who enjoy the maze can also enjoy the neat, clean, and attractively arranged fruit market, which is open, almost all year. The Hinish family sells their own peaches and apples and an array of other locally grown fruits and vegetables as well as crafts. The bakeshop, always a popular item, has pies, gobs, cookies and, of course, apple dumplings.

The maze is open to the public on Thursday and Fridays from 3:30 until 7:30 p.m. Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 5:30p.m. until October 29. Cost is $3 per person.

Is choosing my socks important?
It may seem ridiculous for Bob and I to talk about choosing the right socks, but have you ever stopped to think about the wide variety available? Some people may require special styles or colors, even certain fabrics in their socks And choosing the right pair is important for happy feet If your feet are uncomfortable, the rest of your body doesn't feel so good either (Just ask us we have lots of feet and we know what we're talking about!) Commonly used fibers used to make socks include cotton, wool, nylon, acrylic, polyester, olefin, and spandex Some people even have socks made from linen, cashmere or silk! Socks are knitted to give them stretch and the ability to conform to the foot and leg Men have four major types of socks to choose from—dress, casual, sport and work Women usually wear socks for casual or sports activities They may be ankle length, calf-length or knee length There are summer and winter socks, sports socks and thermal socks Why so many choices? Sock companies want to make us and our feet comfortable In fact, special sock scientists—also called designers—spend hours trying to create the perfect pair of socks for us!

Meet A Cow Day Held At All-American Dairy Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The All-American Dairy Show welcomed the public to the first-ever Meet A Cow Day, Sunday, Sept. 24, at the Farm Show Complex. The All-American Dairy Show, Sept. 24-28 at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex, celebrated its 37th year as it showcases thousands of award-winning dairy animals.

The Penn State University Dairy Science Club members hosted Meet A Cow Day, a hands-on experience for all ages. The purpose of this dairy adventure was to teach both young and old about dairy cows and the dairy industry.

This dairy journey was divided into four sections. Each section provided fun facts about various dairy issues.

At the first section, participants were able to meet a cow. For Andrew Nauss, 8, of Mechanicsburg and Michael Snyder, 6, of Boiling Springs, this was their first time to touch a cow. As Andrew brushed the cow, he described the cow as being much bigger than he expected. "It's soft when I pet down, but not when I pet up," explained Michael.

Andrew attends Northside Elementary School in Mechanicsburg and is in third grade. Michael is a first-grader at W.G. Rice Elementary School in Mt. Holly Springs. For both boys, this was also their first time at the All-American Dairy Show. Erica Davis, a PSU Dairy Science Club Member of Kutztown, introduced the cows to the boys.

Jessica Worobey of Preston Park and Cassie Miller of McVeyton, gave brief facts about milking cows at the second section. For instance, a milking cow produces approximately 100 pounds of milk a day. Jessica told the boys that all cow spots are different. They are like fingerprints, she explained. Both Jessica and Cassie are members of the PSU Dairy Science Club.

Club member Mandy Jewart of Home described the types of feed at the third section of the exhibit.

At the fourth and final section of the dairy journey, PSU member Jane Ansell of Scottdale explained the types of food products made from milk and the nutritional value of these products. Of course, the favorite among the crowd was ice cream. As a special treat, ice cream cones were provided by Turkey Hill Dairy and given to all participants.

In addition, stickers, pencils, magic sponges and other dairy items were given out to visitors.

York County 4-H Hippology (HP) and Horse Bowl (HB) teams placed first and second at State 4-H Achievement Days. York Horse Teams Galloping To National Competition

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Two horse-related teams from York County stampeded their way through statewide competition in late August, earning team members the opportunity to compete at upcoming national equine youth events.

Hippology team members placed first at State 4-H Achievement Days and are finalizing plans to compete nationally at the Quarter Horse Congress in Columbus, Ohio during October. Team members are Jenna Moore, York; April Nabholtz, Felton; Jarek Shank, Mechanicsburg; and Laura Wirth, Camp Hill.

Jenna Moore rides hunt seat and is a student at York's Central High School. April Nabholtz is a home-schooled student, and also rides hunt seat. Jarek Shenk attends Cumberland Valley High School, and competes in saddle seat and pleasure pony driving. Laura Wirth, also a Cumberland Valley High School student, rides hunt seat.

Hippology competition — based on the study of horses — includes a written test, identification of horse-related items, performance of horsemanship skills, judging classes of horses and team problems. All members of a team need to be well-versed in a broad variety of horsemanship aspects and knowledge.

Member of the hippology team will compete a second time at the national level at the Eastern National 4-H Horse Roundup to be held in November in Louisville, Kentucky.

York County's Horse Bowl team, which placed second at the state competition, qualified to compete as well at the Quarter Horse Congress. Team members are Carrie Firman, York; Marie Getz, Airville; Danielle Spencer, Mechanicsburg; and Caitlin Newcomer, York.

As with most "bowl" type team contests, Horse Bowl is based on knowledge of and speed in responding to equine and horsemanship-related questions.

Coaches for both the hippology and horse bowl teams are Deborah Jeffrey, Wrightsville; and Gwen Spencer, Mechanicsburg. In preparation for the upcoming national competitions, the teams are practicing weekly, as well as engaging in fund raising efforts toward travel costs to take part in the Ohio event.

Contributions in support of the York County Hippology and Horse Bowl teams' participation in national competition may be sent to "York County 4-H Horse Clubs," Penn State Agriculture Extension Service, Attn: Michele Grove, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402.

For further information on the horse teams and competition, contact Michele Grove at (717) 840-7408.

Carol Schurman, center, co-chairperson of the 1999 NAE4-HA Annual Conference, presents a $5,000 donation on behalf of the conference committee to the Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Endowment Fund. Also pictured left to right are Ellen Brubaker, Dauphin County 4-H volunteer, Kitty Eget, Indiana County 4-H volunteer and representative of the Southwest 4-H Leaders' Symposium committee; Dr. Blannie Bowen, head of the Penn State Department of Agricultural and Extension Education; and Dr. Marilyn Corbin, state program leader for children, youth and families.

Fund Receives $5,000 Gift

INDIANA (Indiana Co.) — The Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Endowment Fund was recently awarded a $5,000 gift from the planning committee for the 1999 Annual Conference of the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents.

The presentation was made during State 4-H Achievement Days at Penn State University.

In October 1999, more than 1,000 4-H professionals from across the nation gathered in Pittsburgh for the NAE4-HA conference. A committee of extension staff from across the Northeast had planned the meeting during a five-year process.

Part of the conference included volunteer leader and member involvement. More than 100 volunteers provided many hours of support as seminar coordinators, tour guides, 4-H talent, and conference helpers. In addition, many local 4-H clubs, county advisory committees, and regional program planning committees contributed nearly $8,000 in donations to the meeting.

The conference committee voted to acknowledge the state volunteer involvement in the conference with the grant to the leadership endowment. It is hoped that income from this donation will help to support future regional and state leader forums.

Commemorative Cookbook Features Traditional, Comfort Food, Gourmet, More

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — Rosenberger's Dairies marks its 75th anniversary this year. In honor of the celebration, the family-owned company put a call out for recipes featuring dairy products. The result is a 234-page commemorative cookbook with close to 300 recipes and lots of interesting stories about family traditions, special occasions and ethnic celebrations.

"Our family loves good food. As children we always had meals together will all of us seated around a very big table," William Rosenberger said. "We still enjoy sitting down to delicious meals at family gatherings."

The cookbook features favorite foods of the Rosenberger family and those from about 250 cooks in the Hatfield area.

Included also are photographs and a write-up about each of the winners of a cook-off that was held earlier this year at Rosenbeger's to determine the three top recipes in each category, soups, and appetizers, main courses, and desserts.

In addition, there are historical information and archival photos highlighting the progress of Rosenberger's since 1925 when milk was delivered by horse-drawn carriage.

The cookbook includes an interesting history of the Rosenberger family and dairy from 1925 to the present.

The spiral-bound cookbook is attractive and easy to read.

The cookbooks are available at Rosenberger's Dairies, Forty Foot Road, Hatfield, or may be ordered by calling cookbook editor Wendy Walter at 215-855-9074. Each book is $10. A portion of the cookbook sales will be donated to Manna on Main Street.

Here are some of the winning contest recipe entries and the photos of some of the winners.

½ cup Dijon-style mustard
Juice of 2 limes
3 boneless chicken breasts (or 6 halves)
1-2 tablespoons olive oil
⅓ cup heavy cream

Combine salsa, mustard, and lime juice; mix well. Add chicken pieces to salsa mixture, turning each piece to coat. Let chicken marinade at least 30 minutes or refrigerate overnight. To cook, heat oil in large skillet over medium heat. Shake excess salsa mixture from each piece of chicken. Add chicken to skillet; cook chicken, turning once after about 10 minutes. When chicken is browned and just cooked through, add remaining salsa mixture to skillet. Cook three to four minutes, turning chicken pieces to coat with salsa mixture. When the salsa mixture begins to glaze slightly, drizzle cream over the chicken, shaking pan to distribute cream. Cook one minute to heat cream. Serve over bed of rice, being sure to ladle sauce over all.

Note: I like to make this dish and let it simmer for a little while. The chicken will get "extra tender" and will just "melt in your mouth." You may vary the spiciness by using mild, medium, or hot salsa. Also, if you are concerned about the fat content, this dish can be prepared using 2 percent milk instead of heavy cream.

Gloria Bergey
Hatfield

Third place in the main course division is Hot Shot Chicken made by Gloria Bergey, Hatfield. Rosenberger's computer specialist Lowell Bergey is responsible for the Hotshot Chicken entry. When he added the 75th Anniversary Recipe Contest to Rosenberger's Dairies website, he promptly went home and encouraged his wife to enter the favorite dish of the Bergey family. Gloria, who created the dish herself, points out that it is perfect for weight-conscious people who love zesty-tasting food. You add a lot of flavor, but no fat. Moreover, mustard and salsa provide just enough kick to make it tangy without masking the juicy taste of the chicken.

EMMA'S SCALLOPED OYSTERS

4 cups Trenton crackers, crushed
1½ cup fresh oysters cut into 2 or 3 pieces (1½ dozen)
4 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper
3 cups milk and oyster juice

Butter 3-quart casserole. Crush crackers and put one layer on bottom. Put half of oysters on crackers. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Next, layer of crackers, rest of oysters, 2 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper. Cover with remaining crackers. Pour in the milk and oyster juice. Let set for two hours before baking. Bake at 350° for approximately one hour, covering for half the baking time. Serves six.

Note: For easy crushing crackers, put in plastic bag and into microwave a few seconds.

Emma Landis
Lansdale

First place in the main course division is Emma's Scalloped Oysters made by Emma Landis, Lansdale. Emma is one of 12 children. She says that she used her family as guinea pigs for the recipes she created. She lived on her family's farm in Harleysville for 75 years. Now she and her sister are residents of The Acres at Dock Woods. She was director of food services and a cook in the school cafeteria at Christopher Dock until she retired. Her Scalloped Oysters, which she created, was a treasured dish at school banquets and other area special events, including the Rosenberger family Christmas banquet. She says that the recipe is quite adaptable for different tastes. She uses fewer oysters than some may, but more can easily be added.

HOT SAUSAGE DIP

1 package Bob Evans sausage cooked and drained
Add:
5 scallions
8-ounce sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup Parmesan cheese
4-ounce pimentos

Place in shallow dish. Top with chopped scallions. Bake at 350° for 25 minutes. Serve hot with crackers.

Deb Detweiler
Perkasie

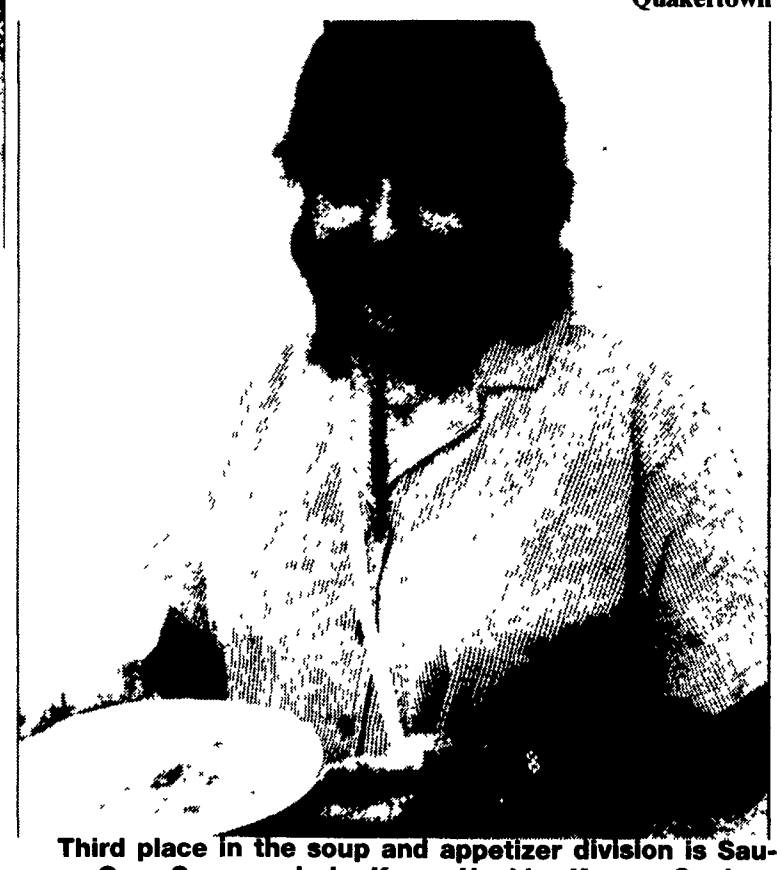
First place in the soup and appetizer division is this Hot Sausage Dip made by Debbie Detweiler, Perkasie. Debbie and her husband Ray have been Rosenberger's Dairies producers for more than 20 years. They live on a 60-acre dairy farm in Bedminster Township and represent the fourth generation working the farm. The historic land dates to 1873 and was put into historic preservation in 1992. When Debbie isn't at work as a nurse at Lansdale Ob-Gyn, she loves to cook. Being a dairy farmer, she prepares many creative dishes featuring milk. The Hot Sausage Dip appetizer is a favorite for family and guests. It's simple and quick to make and gets rave reviews every time.

SAUSAGE CORN SOUP

1½ pound sausage, browned and removed from pan
¼ onion, sauteed in sausage pan
Layer:
2-3 cans creamed corn
2 cups diced potatoes
1 can tomatoes
3 cups water
1 tablespoon sugar
Salt and pepper

Simmer until tender and remove from heat. Add 1 cup hot cream and season to taste.

Karen Heckler Knapp
Quakertown



Third place in the soup and appetizer division is Sausage Corn Soup made by Karen Heckler Knapp, Quakertown. Karen grew up on a dairy farm in Montgomery Square, now the site of Cosco. Her Sausage Corn Soup is from a family cookbook with credit for its creation going to her mother. Her kids, who are 16 and 18, want this tasty soup at least once a month. She is always asked to bring it to family gatherings, to winter parties, and to horseback-riding outings.

Lancaster Society 8

Society 8 of Lancaster Farm Women met Sept. 13, at the Donegal Presbyterian Church. Carol Compton, Evelyn Danneman, Naomi Engle, and Millie Arndt were hostesses.

Karen Sullivan, nurse at Wyeth Labs in Marietta, spoke on the history of the plant, tracing its history from the "Vaccine Farm" to its present facility.

In the business meeting that followed, members voted to send a donation to Arbor Place, Lancaster, and finalized luncheon plans prior to a tour of Winters Heritage Museum, Oct. 11.

Yearly dues are $5 and will collected at the next meeting.

Lancaster Society 18

Mildred Greider, Nolt Rd., was hostess to the Farm Women Society 18 recently. Vice-president Mildred Kreider presided in the absence of the president. Roll call was answered by members sharing memories of childhood pets.

Martha Stoner shared devotional thoughts.

The afternoon program, New Life Assistant Dog, presented the remarkable story of animals selected as puppies deemed capable to be trained as an assistant to the physically disabled. Living in a home of love and patience teaches obedience.

At 18 months, a professionally trained dog will know more than 80 commands. After these are learned, the dog spends several months with wheelchair occupants. It is with this person, sharing the life, learning the actual needs, that the dog and the person forms a close bond of friendship.

It is a new life for both the dog and the disabled person. The dog opens doors, turns lights on and off, and retrieves dropped articles. A dog summons help by barking and offers security for the disabled. The wheelchair occupant knows "a friend in need is a friend indeed" even if the friend does not speak but barks.

Lancaster Society 20

On Thursday, Sept. 7, Lancaster County Farm Women Society 20 met at the home of Marion Hastings with Mary Shirk as cohostess. Following the refreshments the Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The guest speaker was Katrina Anderson, director of the Quarryville Library, who talked about the location, size, furniture that will be needed and many other details, at the conclusion she was presented with a donation from the organization.

President Valarie Ferguson, presided at the business meeting, Helen Tout reported five cards had been sent, Nancy Lefever was thanked for chairing the August picnic, and Valaria gave a report on the executive board meeting she attended. It was a pleasure to install Nancy Rintz as a member of the organization. With sorrow, we report the death of two members this year, Velma Goss and Helen Harnish.

Pot holders was the theme for discussion, after the president told of different ways hot dishes were taken out of the oven and handled long before pot holders came into existence. In answer to the roll call, each of the 19 members told why they had brought a pot holder and what special meaning it had to them.

The meeting closed by singing "Brighten The Corner." The October meeting will be held with Marie Foose with Barbara Stone as co-hostess when the society will have a food auction and collect the dues.

Toni uses a Chatsford mug infuser that works wonderfully. It is about 3-inches in diameter and the top rim fits on the top of most of her teapots. The infusers cost $8.40 and can be purchased from The Upton Tea Company, 231 S. St., Hopkinton, MA 01748. Call 1-800-234-8327. Toni writes that it is fun to call them because you can discuss the merits of various teas with your very own tea consultant. They also sell samples for as low as $1 so that you can check flavors before you buy. The free quarterly catalog is amazing and shows several types of infusers.

Survey Looks At What It Takes To Support Farming

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Farmers in southeastern Pennsylvania are getting a chance to tell state legislators their views on farmland preservation and supporting agribusiness, as part of a study by researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Co-dependence of Pennsylvania's Agribusinesses, Farms and Farmland," a research project funded in part by the Center for Rural Pennsylvania, examines the economic ties between farming operations, farmland preservation and agribusiness sustainability. The research group mailed written surveys to farmers and agribusinesses in southeastern Pennsylvania, and will follow with a series of face-to-face interviews with selected agribusiness owners. The data will help legislators make future decisions.

According to Kelsey, the state's current initiative to save farmland is just part of a larger challenge. "Keeping agriculture as a viable industry requires a critical balance of farmland preservation, agribusiness support and farm profitability," he says. "If you lose a lot of farms in a community, that makes it hard for agribusiness to stay in business. If you lose agribusiness, that makes it hard for farmers, because they can't get supplies locally. So if you want to keep agriculture, you have to keep both of them."

Compare Navel And Valencia Oranges

What's the difference between navel oranges and Valencia oranges?

They're just different varieties, but they're close enough that they can be used interchangeably for snacking or in most recipes. It's not recommended that navel oranges be cooked for long periods, though, because they tend to get bitter. Add them in the last five minutes of cooking and you'll be fine.

There are other differences, too. Valencia oranges are harvested in early spring and summer, so they're mostly available from late February through November. They tend to have very few seeds. They're usually medium to large size and have a round to oval shape. Sometimes the skin is tinged with green, but not because they were picked before they were fully ripe. Rather, Valencia oranges sometimes begin to turn green again just as they're reaching full ripening. The phenomenon, called regreening, occurs because the oranges are ripening in the warmer months. The regreening begins at the stem end.

Navel oranges are almost always seedless. They're generally larger than Valencias but also tend to have a round to oval shape. The peel has a more pebbly texture and is generally thicker than the peel on a Valencia orange. Navel oranges are known for their ease in peeling and sectioning. The navel orange is harvested in the winter, making it commonly available from November through May.

The best storage temperature for oranges is 45 degrees to 48 degrees Fahrenheit. Unfortunately, that's a bit too warm for the refrigerator and much too cool for room temperature. Still, oranges, like most citrus fruits, will keep at room temperature for about a week to 10 days. If you prefer to store them in the refrigerator, use a vegetable crisper where you can control the temperature so it's a bit warmer. In the refrigerator, oranges last for two to three weeks.

Not surprisingly, oranges are chock-full of vitamin C. Navel oranges tend to have a bit more, gram for gram, with about 57 milligrams per 100 grams of fruit (about ⅔ of a large orange), compared with 48.5 milligrams of vitamin C per 100 grams in a Valencia orange. Either way, you can count on getting 60 to 80 milligrams of vitamin C whenever you eat an orange. That's a lot, considering the recommended daily amount for women is 75 milligrams and 90 milligrams for men.

Ram Lamb, Invitational Ewe Sale Posts Results

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced the results from a very successful 22nd Annual Performance Tested Ram Lamb and Invitational Ewe Sale, in conjunction with Pennsylvania's Sheep Producers Field Day.

The performance-tested ram sale started with the 27 junior Suffolk rams, which averaged $241. The top-indexing junior Suffolk, consigned by John Scott, Jr., sold for $350 to Judith Witt of Burnt Cabins. The top-selling spring-born Suffolk was another John Scott consignment, the lot 3 ram, sold to George Hunter of Stoneboro for $425. There were four other spring Suffolk rams that returned $400.

The nine spring-born Hampshire rams averaged $214. The top-indexing Hampshire ram lamb was consigned by Heth Hampshires and sold to William Stoner of Mifflintown for $325. The top sale price for a Hampshire ram was $350 which was bid for the second highest indexing Hampshire consigned by Clyde Brubaker and the Jim Parlett consigned ram. These rams sold to Warren Landis of Souderton and Jayson Harpster of Pennsylvania Furnace, respectively.

The 18 fall-born Dorsets were the next to cross the auction block. They returned the top breed average sale price of $375. The three highest prices of the day were offered for a senior Dorset. The overall top-selling ram was lot 44, the Penn State University consignment, which sold to Max DeHart, Milton for $850.

The second highest selling ram of the day was the fastest gaining senior Dorset consigned by Hollystone Farm. This ram was selected by Mulligan Farms, Belmont, N.Y., for $825. The ram with the largest scanned loin eye, on test, was lot 45 owned by Penn State, which sold to Gordon Roup of Danville for $800.

The spring-born Dorsets followed with the next highest breed sale average of $282.

The top-indexing spring-born ram lamb consigned by Hollystone Farm was also the top-selling ram among all of the spring-born rams.

Delaware Valley College, Doylestown offered the winning bid of $650 for this, the highest-indexing ram over all. The second-highest indexing Dorset consigned by Visions Stock Farm of McConnellsburg sold for the second-highest price of the group when $400 was bid by Jack Smith for Max DeHart of Milton.

The Oxford ram consigned by Jeffrey Everett sold for $150 to Mulligan Farms.

The two Tunis rams consigned by LHH Tunis sold for $175 each.

The two Southdown rams consigned by Seth's Flock sold for $175 to David Campbell of Northumberland and for $150 to Mulligan Farms, respectively.

Every ram of this, the largest group of rams to ever be tested or offered for sale in Pennsylvania's performance tested ram sale, sold for a very good average of $275.

The invitational ewe sale was also very successful with 45 purebred ewes, most of which were ewe lambs, selling for an average of $215.

The 10 Hampshire ewes sold for an average of $225. The 10 Suffolk ewe lambs sold for an average of $215. The 25 Dorset ewes averaged $210. The six Suffolk Polypay commercial ewe lambs averaged $150.

Then And Now! Duct Tape — It's More Than It's Quacked Up To Be (NAPS) Believe it or not, the world was once without duct tape. Over the years it has become a symbol of American ingenuity, an icon and a resourceful tool that represents our culture. In fact, in just one year people purchase enough Duck brand duct tape to wrap around the Earth's equator 12.3 times! Duct tape has saved lives, been used on space missions to the moon and has been applied on practically everything, from alligators' mouths to helicopter blades. But there was a time when duct tape did not exist.

Duct tape was developed during World War II. GIs saw the advantages of an all-purpose, strong, waterproof tape that could easily be ripped into lengths and quickly used to fix things. Using medical tape as the basis from which to build the new tape, along with two new technologies — the ability to "polycoat" adhesive products and to laminate the polyethylene coat to a cloth backing — the prototype was developed.

After the war, the product continued to evolve both in name and form. The nameless, military-green tape from the war came to America and found a small but loyal group of users. When the product was found easier and just as effective to use as screws and bolts for holding together duct work...duct tape was born. The color then changed from the drab military-green to the familiar silver-gray that is known so well today.

During the next 30 years, no company tried much of anything new with duct tape, except for a little company in Cleveland, Ohio. In the mid 1970s, that company, Manco, Inc., became the first to shrink-wrap and label the product, making it easier for retailers so stack the sticky rolls on top of one another and easier for shoppers to distinguish different grades of duct tape just look for the friendly Duck! And since that time, duct tape has become so much more than the tape it was during WWII:

- It's removable, without leaving adhesive residue behind.
- It's bright! Available in extreme neon colors like pink, yellow, green and orange, duct tape makes for a variety of applications like an easy identifier when picking up luggage from the airport terminal.
- It's camouflage-perfect for hunters and fishermen.
- And it's electronic. Manco, Inc., the makers of Duck brand duct tape, the leading U.S. brand, has developed a Web site that spreads the duct take word. Check out www.ducktape-club.com.

Americans love duct tape. Manco, Inc., the makers of Duck brand tape, is flooded with letters from loyal Duck Tape fans. Here are a few fun and quirky uses they received:

- "The river was rising and began seeping in. Duck Tape around the door edges stopped it. Seven-inches of water outside but none inside" — Dennis G., West Plains, MO.
- "At the zoo we used Duck Tape to keep a kangaroo pouch shut. An underdeveloped joey was ejected too early. The tape held the pouch shut for several weeks until the pouch opening shrank to hold the little guy in." — Brad B., Wichita, KS.
- "My husband is a crop duster. Once in a while a wing tip gets in a tree. With no time to stop and fix it, he uses Duck Tape. Put on appropriately, it will stay on up to 102 mph." — Kay B. Elmer, MO.
- "I take students to Europe every spring break. We've used Duck Tape to tape showerheads up in Madrid, doors shut in Morocco and secure luggage. I never travel without it." — Lee
- "Duck tape directly on the skin is great for blisters on the feet!" — Phyllis J., Ephrata, WA.
- "During Desert Storm, sand was wearing down helicopter blades. The blades were saved by putting Duck Tape on the edge and replacing it as it wore off." — Stev C., Springfield, VT.

Colorful Ways To Brighten A Room Naturally

(NAPSI) — Can you answer this trivia question? What household purchase can serve as a paperweight, room freshener or window treatment? (Hint: It can also do double duty as a color accent in your living room and a mood enhancer at the end of a trying day.)

The answer? Fresh flowers.

On-the-go women are discovering that fresh flowers are a simple, inexpensive, multi-purpose way to brighten their everyday world. Flowers can also be a versatile interior dcor feature, adding color and texture to home and work environments:

Light up a room with red, yellow and blue flowers, marching across a mantle or window sill in slender glass vases.

Tuck a bowl of fresh flowers in with heirloom plates, family photographs or books to spotlight a collection.

Unify your design statement with a lush display of color, e.g., electric blue delphiniums or crimson callas.

Flowers can dramatize a theme or capture a seasonal ambience. For a Tuscan kitchen tableau, arrange sunflowers, dahlias and Queen Anne's Lace next to a basket of grapes, pears and tomatoes. Evoke the fields of Provence with sprays of lavender.

"Whatever your color or design theme, there are flowers to carry out that statement," says Ren Van Rems, world-renowned floral designer and spokesperson for the California Cut Flower Commission. "In California, growers produce hundreds of varieties and they continually add new ones to satisfy current trends."

In a world dominated by lightning-quick technology, fresh flowers rekindle an ancient connection with nature, replenishing the spirit and calming the senses.

In the office, give your tired eyes and spirit a respite. Anchor a stack of reports with a melody of roses, stock and lisianthus, in soothing tones of cream, champagne and blush. Fill a glass vase with pebbles to weight it, then add water and flowers.

Wherever you bring flowers into your life, tickle your fancy with unique containers-an antique inkwell for a desk, a sculpted frog for the bathroom. There's an infinite number of ways to soften a hectic everyday world with the sensual, scented world of flowers.

For a free brochure on fresh flower arranging, send an SASE to the California Cut Flower Commission, 73 Hangar Way, Watsonville, CA 95076 or visit their website at www.ccfc.org.

Best Management Practices Manual Complete

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The State Conservation Commission (SCC) recently announced several informational meetings to review with the public the recently published Best Management Practices Manual for Pennsylvania Livestock and Poultry Operations.

"This is an excellent opportunity for local farmers to learn more about their responsibilities as outlined in the manual and to get feedback on their questions or concerns," said Rep. Sheila Miller (R-129), herself a farmer and vice chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

"Local government officials and conservation district staff and directors would also benefit because of their involvement in seeing that the guidelines are followed," she said.

The meetings will be open to the public. Two sessions, from 1 p.m.-3 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m., will be conducted at the following locations:

- Lancaster, Oct. 12 — Lancaster County Farm and Home Center.
- Leesport, Oct. 13 — Berks County Ag Center.

The best management practices manual includes a checklist that farmers can use to help determine the requirements that apply to their operations.

The manual was compiled by the State Conservation Commission in cooperation with the departments of agriculture and environmental protection. Senate Resolution 91 of 1997 called for the creation of the manual to help identify current management practice requirements and recommended practices to address environmental and public concerns. An Agriculture Advisory Board was also created by the resolution to help with the effort.

Copies of the manual, either on paper or CD-ROM, will be available to all who attend the public meetings. Any remaining copies will be provided on a first-come, first-served basis. To be placed on a waiting list for the manual, call the State Conservation Commission at (717) 787-8821 and ask for Joann Flanagan.

NFU Board Pushes Bill For Interstate Shipment Of State Inspected Meat

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In letter to Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chair of the Senate Agricultural Committee, the National Farmers Union (NFU) board of directors pledged its support for efforts to pass legislation this session that would allow the interstate shipment of state-inspected meat.

"This legislation is important to the development of a fair and level playing field for the small meat packers who serve our family farmers," said Leland Swenson, NFU president. "These plants provide diverse marketing opportunities in an industry that needs to expand competition and consumer choice in the marketplace."

Currently, state-inspected meat cannot be shipped across state lines for sale. This legislation allows the state-inspected product, which is inspected under the same health and safety guidelines as federally inspected meat, to be sold to retailers and distributors in another state. The legislation recognizes that there is no difference in the level of safety between state and federally inspected meat. In addition, it would benefit family farmers and ranchers by allowing them to take advantage of markets in other states regardless to who buys their cattle.

"Now is the time to provide fair access to the small processors who are an important resource to family farmers and ranchers," said Swenson. "This bill will provide a level playing field for the small processor and ensure marketing opportunities for the cattle producer "

Company Launches Online Animal Health Products Exchange

RALEIGH, N.C. — Producers can now purchase animal health products through XSAg.com, the leading neutral online exchange of agricultural inputs.

The new exchange on www.XSAg.com offers producers a broad range of animal health products primarily for the beef, dairy, and swine industries. Buyers and sellers have access to inventories from across the country to uncover cost savings. Products can be purchased through a standard fixed-price listing or by using the Name Your Price feature.

Suppliers of animal health products, including veterinarians, dealers, distributors, and manufacturers, can take advantage of an instant e-commerce solution and inventory management tool by capitalizing on XSAg.com's audience of more than 40,000 users.

For more than a year, thousands of farmers across the nation have relied on XSAg.com to save five percent to 25 percent on input costs for ag chemicals, seeds and parts. The service is free to buyers and all information is fully private and secure.

"We researched the market and designed an online exchange model that meets the needs of both buyers and sellers in the animal health industry." said Mark Hill, director of animal health products for XSAg.com. "The XSAg.com animal health exchange gives all sectors of the industry the opportunity to benefit from e-commerce."

Hundreds of animal health products ranging from biologicals to parasite controls are available on the exchange. Buyers can search for a specific product by brand name, species, therapeutic category, or active ingredient.

The animal health products exchange joins current XSAg.com chemical, seed, and equipment parts exchanges on www.XSAg.com.

"Not only will the animal health exchange benefit producers," said Fulton Breen, XS, Inc. founder and CEO. "But, our registered sellers will benefit as well because of the potential to more efficiently manage inventories."

Before participating on the site, new users must register at www.XSAg.com. For animal health products, payment is made via credit card and shipping arrangements are provided on the site by the seller.

York Fair Junior Livestock Champions Sold

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Finishing her 4-H career with a flourish, Hanover exhibitor Tammi Grubb bid farewell to York Fair junior competition by opening the annual youth livestock sale with her grand champion market steer.

Champion market goat at the York Fair junior show was exhibited by Chad Menges and sold for $600 to Fulton Bank. Representing the bank are Mike, Margeaux, and Morgan Firestine and Jared Rodman.

Hoss's Steak and Sea House, represented by Rob Billet, was the winning bidder for Lindsay Jones' reserve champion market hog with a $900 bid.

Rookie 4-H'er Dalton Flory's reserve champion market lamb went to a Flory family of buyers, represented by Tasha and Donald Flory, Jr.

The 1,255-pound, Angus X Maine-Anjou crossbred steer led off the livestock parade of champions through the sale arena and generated a final bid of $5,000 from a trio of supporters. Placing the winning bid on the champion were Del-Wood Kitchens, Inc., C & E Enterprises and Hanover Agway, all of the Hanover area.

Reserve champion steer, exhibited by Hope Long, Airville, weighed in at 1,320 pounds and brought a winning bid of $3,000 from Tuscarora Hardwood, Inc., Elliottsburg.

Grand champion lamb exhibitor Jen Flinchbaugh, York, also marked her final year of junior participation, wrapping up with a bid of $1,575 from a buyers consortium. Included were Bob Robinson Insurance, Dr. Barry Flinchbaugh, Bortner Bros., Inc., Colin Arndt Trailer Management, Rentzel Auctioneering, Rep. Ron Miller (R-93rd District), Godfrey Bros. Meats, Walnut Lane Farm, and Dean Keeny.

Dalton Flory's reserve champion lamb earned him a boost of support from his family. Teaming up for the final bid of $700 on the Brogue 4-H'ers lamb were buyers Jackie and Donald Flory and Donald Flory, Jr.

Kurt Long, Airville, was the exhibitor of the champion market swine, a 244-pound crossbred. It sold to Tuscarora Hardwood, Inc., on a winning bid of $1,400.

Frequent youth sale support Hoss's Steak and Sea House offered the final bid of $900 on the reserve champion market swine, exhibited by Lindsay Jones, East Berlin.

This year marked the first time that market goats were included in the annual York Fair junior livestock sale. Champion market goat, exhibited by Chad Menges, Hanover, weighed 70-pounds and sold for $600 to Fulton Bank.

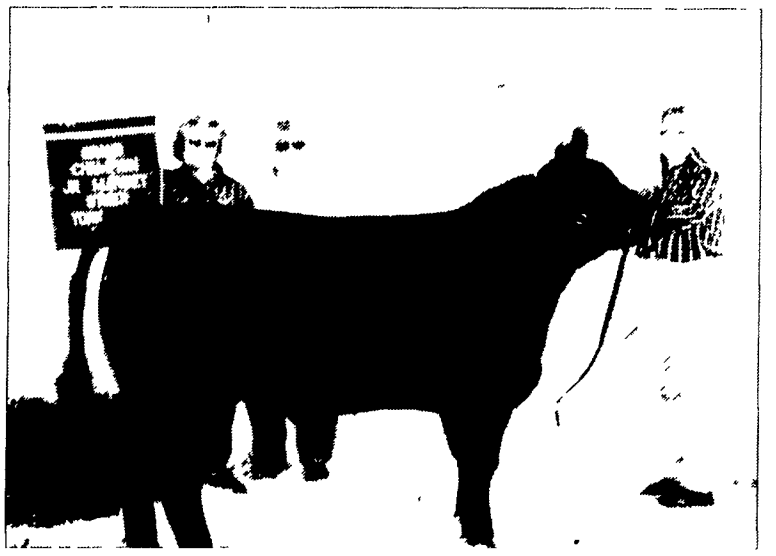
Reserve champion market goat placing was won by Jarah Spahr. Her 77-pound runner-up goat won a bid of $350 from Engle Publishing/York Community Courier, Mount Joy, and Spring Valley Lawn Care, Wellsville.

Continuing a tradition of some two decades, a cake baked and decorated by 4-H volunteer Lois Rankin was the sale's kickoff feature, with the proceeds to benefit youth livestock programs. Further continuing the tradition, the first nine bidders chose not to keep the cake, donating it back for someone else to buy.

Final bidder and former 4-H livestock member Jason Baer's Trucking then donated the cake to be cut and enjoyed by the juniors at the end of the sale. Total raised by the cake auction was $1,375, with other buyers including Beasley Ford, C & E Enterprises, Del-Wood Kitchens, Inc., Starview Farm Women/Group #7, Manchester Hardware, and York County Pork Producers.

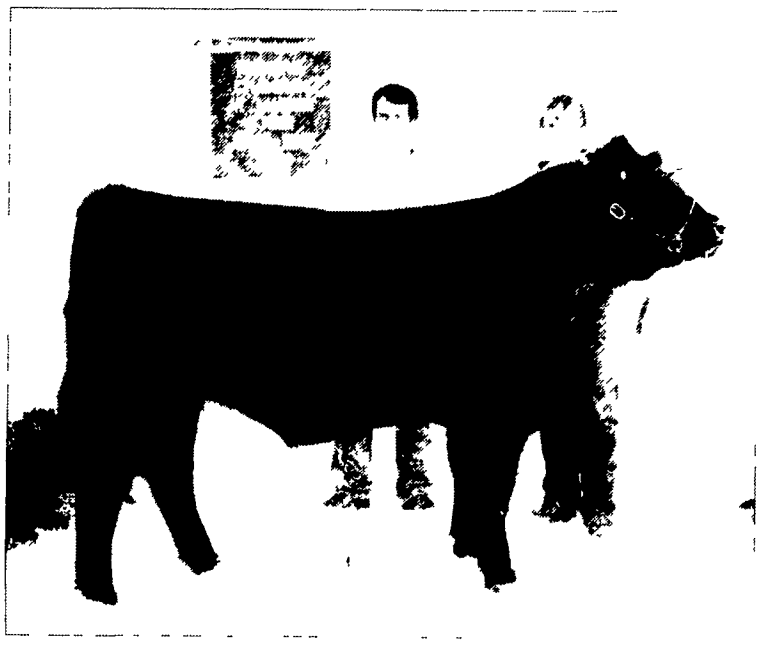
More than $89,500 for junior livestock exhibitors and youth programs was generated by the York Fair's junior livestock sale. On the 64 head of market lambs, sale average was $1.91 per pound with the champion and $1.66 per pound without the champion, and a per-head average of $176. Market steers, on 27 head, averaged $1.20 per pound with the champion and $1.04 without the champion, for a per-head average of $1,275.

Largest volume of head sold was in the swine category, with 94 head averaging $302, and a per-pound price, with the champion, of $1.31 per pound and $1.24 without the champion. Although only seven goats went through the sale, they averaged $195, with a per pound average including the champion of $4.11 and $3.04 without the champion.



Tammi Grubb's champion junior market steer sold for $5,000 to buyers Del-Wood Kitchens, C & E Enterprises, and Hanover Agway. Representing the buyer trio are Charles and Evelyn Grubb.

Champion market lamb, exhibited by Jen Flinchbaugh, sold to a syndicate of buyers for $1,575.



Hope Long's reserve champion market steer sold on a $3,000 bid from Tuscarora Hardwood, Inc., represented by Dan Long.

Southern Wayne Livestock Sale At GDS Supports Youth

NEWFOUNDLAND (Wayne Co.) — Saturday, Sept. 2, here at the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair in Newfoundland, market hogs, lambs, and steers were offered for sale following the week's showing of youth livestock projects.

Area businesses, friends, and family supported youth at the Southern Wayne Junior Livestock Sale where auctioneers Wayne Weaver and Tom Randt volunteered their services.

As in previous years, Waymart Milling Company of Waymart, was volume buyer in both dollars spent and animals purchased.

This year's grand champion and reserve grand champion market hogs were both bred and raised by Andrew Nebzydoski of Pleasant Mount. Marshall Machinery of Honesdale was the successful buyer of the 257 pound Hampshire crossbred grand champion for $4 per pound. The reserve grand champion Hampshire crossbred was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keating for $1.75 per pound.

Ryan Keyes, Waymart, sold his 112-pound grand champion market lamb to Narrowsburg Feed and Grain, Narrowsburg, N.Y., for $6.90 per pound. Reserve grand champion market lamb was raised by Sam Verrill, Honesdale, and was successfully bid to $2.50 per pound by Tom McNamara of Miracle Ear.

Matthew Hauenstein, Aldenville, exhibited the grand champion market steer. This 1,400-pound steer was sold to Waymart Milling Company for $2 per pound. Waymart Milling also purchased Luke Megivern's reserve grand champion steer for $1.25 per pound. Megivern, of Pleasant Mount, bred and raised this 1,255-pound steer.

Six animals were donated for resale to benefit various funds. Marshall Machinery returned two hogs with resale proceeds being given to the Wayne County Livestock Scholarship Fund. The Livestock Barn Fund for the GDS Fair received resale donations from the Honesdale National Bank, County Commissioner Mark Graziadio, and Congressional Candidate Pat Casey. John and Sue Keyes returned a lamb for sale to the benefit of a fund to purchase steers for a GDS Calf Scramble.

Grand and reserve grand champion market hogs were exhibited by Andrew Nebzydoski of Pleasant Mount, right. Show judge was Larry Arnold.

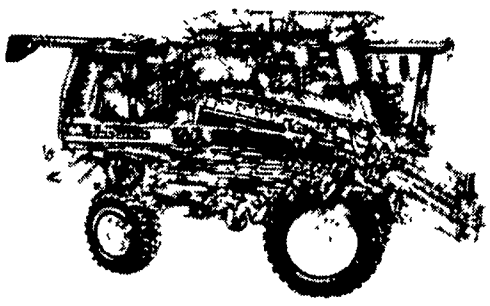
ALL-NEW STS COMBINES!



THE SINGLE TINE-SEPARATION MODULE IS AT THE HEART OF THE NEW STS COMBINES

- Advanced Harvesting Solutions
- Superior Feeding Performance
- Feed Accelerator
- Integrated Stone Protection
- Auger-Type Flighting
- Three-Step Outer Cage
- All-New Threshing Pads
- Deere Tine Separation
- Short for Feed Accelerator & Stone Trap

FEATURING:
John Deere's Revolutionary Single Tine-Separation Concept

DON'T MISS
The Fall Oil and Filter Sale!

THRESHING & SEPARATING

- A concentric cage throughout the full length of the rotor, the John Deere STS Module features a stair-step design. This gives the crop mat room to expand as it travels through the separator module, reducing the chances for roping and lowering power requirements. The pull-and-release action frees trapped grain in the crop mat, boosting grain savings significantly.
- STS Combines can be equipped with your choice of three concaves
- Austempered carbidic iron - an innovative new casting that provides excellent abrasive resistance and durability
- A dual-range separator drive gives you a wide range of speeds to match conditions.

ENGINE

- John Deere POWERTECH® Engine, Power Boost, Power Bulge
- With the STS Combines, you get wide open access to the tine separator rotor, concaves and separator grates.
- Brisk harvesting speeds are just the beginning with a John Deere 50 Series STS Combine
- Plus, there are no daily lube points on the entire machine. In fact, the shortest lube interval is 50 hours.

CLEANING

- The All-New DynoFlo™ Cleaning System
- A new cleaning fan - a single, 12-blade scroll-type design
- With only three settings on the DynoFlo System - (cleaning fan speed, main chaffer and sieve), you can adjust easily from one crop to the next.

BUSINESS ❖ NEWS

Co-Op Appoints Product Manager

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Cumberland Valley Cooperative Association (CVC) has appointed Neil Bixler agronomic product manager.

Bixler comes on board with 20 years of agri-business experience, recently as general manager of GreenSeed Company, a southeastern Forage and Turf seed company.

Prior to GreenSeed, Bixler worked in a variety of sales and management positions with Andgrow Fertilizer.

Neil Bixler

Bixler's responsibilities with CVC include sales, product management, product development, and business growth.

Eby Introduces Live-Floor Bulk Commodity Trailer

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — M.H. Eby, Inc. is now manufacturing an all-aluminum bulk commodity trailer that includes an extruded aluminum moving floor.

This new premium quality trailer was unveiled to receptive audiences at the 2000 Mid-America Truck Show in Louisville.

The design features greatly reduced tare weights of 12,000 to 12,500-pounds because of the extensive use of aluminum in place of steel. Available with single or double corrugated side walls in 90-inch, 96-inch or 102-inch side heights, the trailer is offered in lengths from 45-feet to 50-feet and in both 96-inch and 102-inch widths.

Standard specifications include:

- Single .063-inch thick (or double .050-inch thick) aluminum wall sheets in pre-painted white or black with side posts on 14-½-inch centers
- Aluminum J-beam crossmembers with aluminum bogie and fixed two-leaf, two-stage spring suspension (standard). Options include airride slider and airride spread suspensions.
- Stainless steel rear frame with cathedral header and double lock rod doors.
- Extruded aluminum moving floor, available with cord or cordless remote control, and aluminum sub-floor.
- Shur-Lock® roll up tarp; available with optional stainless steel arched bows for foot grade products
- Stainless steel landing gear supports
- Front catwalk and ladder.

An optional permanent or removable rear hopper can be built in for feed ingredients, food products and similar cargo. Eby also expects the new trailer to be popular for transporting wood products, recycled plastic and rubber.

Greatly reduced weight is the key to the success of this new trailer product. The weight reduction of 600 to 800-pounds (compared to competing units) has been achieved with the use of more aluminum (vs. steel) than any competing product.

Shake Up Hardpan With Subsoiler

SHELL ROCK, Iowa — Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc. introduces the Brent Tremor™ subsoiler, an addition to its Brent tillage product lineup.

The Tremor subsoiler provides maximum hardpan fracture and soil disturbance with its parabolic-style shanks and is constructed with a heavy duty, all-welded, double-frame design with a six-inch by six-inch rear bar for superior durability. Gauge wheels with 9.5Lx15-8 tires are standard.

Swivel coulters with 20-inch diameter rippled blades cut the residue in front of the shanks for optimum residue flow and features 1,500-pounds of down pressure for consistent penetration, even in the heaviest soil.

The Tremor subsoiler's parabolic shanks fracture hardpan up to 20-inches deep for maximum soil shattering. Shanks are one and one-fourth-inches wide by five-inches deep and are set on 30-inch spacings with 35-inches of underframe clearance for maximum residue flow. Replaceable points and wearbars provide extended shank life. Its innovative frame design allows producers to vary shank spacing from 20-inches to 40-inches. Optional bolt-on frame extensions allow the machine to be easily widened.

The rugged, automatic-reset shank design provides 4,300 pounds of trip pressure for consistent working depth. Shank trips rearward and upward without use of shearbolts. Models featuring shear-bolt shanks with 5,400-pounds of shear pressure are also available.

Additional options include a pull-type conversion package, chromiumcapped points for abrasive soils, point with wings for additional shattering action and a shank stagger kit for increasing residue flow and lowering tractor horsepower requirements. The Tremor subsoiler is available in three-through nine-shank models and with a powder-coat finish in producer's choice of tractor red or green.

Case IH 2200 Series Corn Heads Offer Superior Harvesting Value

RACINE, Wis. — The all new 2200 Series corn head from Case IH agricultural equipment gives farmers faster harvest speeds, increased efficiency, and longer life.

"Our new design offers farmers the row-spacing configurations they need, as well as increased capacity through a 12-row unit," said Kelly Kravig, Case IH marketing manager, combines, cotton pickers and 4WD tractors. "And, that's not all. The entire head has been redesigned to provide greater durability, reliability, efficiency, grain savings and an all-around better harvesting value."

The 2200 Series corn heads are available in six-, eight-, and 12-row configurations, ranging from 20- to 38-inch row spacing. According to Kravig, many growers are experimenting with new row-spacing options to find their optimum yields. The 2200 Series provides harvesting configurations to match these grower needs.

A two-piece, modular, cantilever stalk roll design with a larger diameter roll offers improved durability and ease of service over previous models. The design eliminates some parts and allows other parts that see greater wear to be replaced individually. A larger diameter means the stalk roll requires fewer rotations per minute (RPMs) to achieve the same capacity.

Another notable feature of the new stalk roll design is its four-blade intermeshing knife with tungsten carbide knife tips. The unique design provides a self-sharpening effect, and heat treatment makes the knives extremely durable. The intermeshing offset blades promote shearing of the cornstalk into small pieces.

"The shearing caused by intermeshing knives cuts stalk material into smaller pieces than a regular knife blade," Kravig said. "Smaller stalk pieces provide numerous benefits, including increased stalk decomposition, improved trash flow during tillage and planting, less food for wintering insects, improved stalk flow, and less trash to interfere with combine performance."

An optional straight-fluted stalk roll also is available on the 2200 Series. The straight flute more aggressively feeds the stalks than the tapered design of other corn heads. The fluted stalk roll leaves residue in the field longer and requires less horsepower than the knife-type roll.

A low-profile hood and divider design, coupled with new polyethylene material, has improved crop flow with the 2200 Series headers.

"First, the corn head's low-profile design enhances crop flow into the header," Kravig noted. "Then the header's smooth plastic surface minimizes drag on downed corn, reduces header loss and helps move more crop into the header more evenly."

In addition, color-impregnated polyethylene never needs painting and provides superior strength, flexibility and durability. In fact, all 2200 Series corn head frames and sub-assemblies are painted prior to assembly, helping to maintain appearance and prevent rust. The frame's durability and strength is further improved with heavy duty frame end sheets to reduce frame flex and improve header rigidity.

Under the polyethylene hood, a rugged steel-reinforced tubular frame provides the rigidity and strength needed for the toughest conditions. Cast iron divider points adjust to obtain desired operating height and compensate for different crop conditions.

Growers looking for greater header height control may consider adding on automatic header height control and field tracker. A center-mounted sensor detects the proper header height. With the addition of field tracker, two additional sensors mounted on the end dividers provide lateral-tilt control of the header.

From inside the cab, the operator also can control the size of the stripper plate gap, allowing adjustments for in-field conditions. An optional hydraulic cylinder mounted on the stripper plates is used to increase or decrease the spacing for on-the-go adjustments.

Hoffman Seeds Educates Growers About Latest Products

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Hoffman Seeds, the exclusive distributor of Novartis Seeds in the Northeast, conducted a technology field day in Lancaster recently to provide practical information for farmers in the mid-Atlantic area. With Novartis Crop Protection and Aventis, the field day assisted growers in crop and associated technologies for corn, soybean, and alfalfa.

Tour highlights included several new NK® Brand hybrids that combine YieldGard® protection, Liberty® herbicide resistance, and ProShield™ with Force ST™ technology, the first seed-delivered corn insecticide.

Guided by Hoffman Agronomist Mark Mattingly, growers were introduced to N48-V8, a Bt corn hybrid developed especially for silage and recognized for producing extremely high yields of improved-quality, for better herd health and top milk production.

Like all NK® Brand YieldGard® hybrids, N48-V8 is resistant to Liberty® herbicide.

"When you have an 80,000-kernel bag of Bt corn, the most important thing is the genetic pattern," said Mattingly. "But with an NK® Brand YieldGard® Bt hybrid, you not only get excellent resistance to European corn borer, but the flexibility of providing resistance to Liberty® herbicide."

In addition to Liberty Link®, Mattingly said he is excited about Hoffman's ProShield™ with Force ST™ technology.

"When growers are applying soil insecticide through the planter box, the critical thing is being sure the box is calibrated for accurate delivery. Even with the best calibrated planter, accurate rate delivery is dependent on the speed of the planter. By offering the ProShield™ technology, we are, in effect, calibrating each seed to deliver an accurate dose of the soil insecticide ingredient."

Mattingly also focused on N58-D1, a new hybrid protected with YieldGard® insect protection. N58-D1 has been recognized by growers for superior performance, especially during the stressful 1999 season. In the "1999 Pennsylvania Commercial Hybrid Report," N58-D1 boasted the highest grain yield in both Zone 1 and Zone 2 trials.

In the 1999 summary of "Maryland Field Corn Trial" results, N82-J6 Bt corn, a full-season grain hybrid, gave excellent performance in the full maturity group. Also protected with NK® Brand YieldGard® and Liberty Link®, N82-J6 provides excellent resistance to all generations of European corn borer.

Showcasing the latest in technology and it's impact on farming, growers were also introduced to Global Positioning Systems (GPS) and Global Information Systems (GIS) field mapping technology by Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, Ephrata.

Rutters Guernsey Named York Fair Supreme Champion

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A 5-year-old Guernsey cow which nearly bled to death on Labor Day bounced back from an emergency transfusion to win the York Fair's Supreme Champion dairy title just 10 days later.

"Rutter Brothers Perfectos Yogibear," bred and owned by Rutter's Dairy, York, was spotted by herd manager Cindy Rutter Johnson as the cows were being brought in for milking.

"We think another cow shoved her into some barbed wire," Johnson said, reflecting back on that frightening recent holiday afternoon. The prized EX-91 Yogibear had an inch-long tear in a mammary vein and the Rutter family feared she would die after losing an estimated half of her entire blood supply. An emergency stock of blood was drawn from a herdmate, filtered and slowly transfused back into the strapping big Guernsey, almost miraculously saving her life.

"And she never stopped eating," marveled Johnson, relaxing at the fair after the cow she had shown had bested the other dairy breed champions to take the top dairy title. Yogibear, wrapping up her third lactation with a 22,000+ milk record, freshened last December and earned Farm Show champion honors after first battling a potassium deficiency with symptoms similar to the calcium-related "milk fever."

This was the second consecutive year that the Rutter family snagged Supreme honors with a Guernsey breed champion, earning them another year to hold the revolving M. Ebert "Bud" Rutter Memorial Trophy, presented annually by the York Fair in memory of Johnson's grandfather. "Bud" Rutter was one of the founding brothers of the Rutter's dairy operation and long-time dairy superintendent at the York Fair.

Backing up Yogibear in the Guernsey breed open show champion lineup was herdmate "Rutter Bros. Fayettes Lizzi," a senior 2- year-old exhibited by junior Terri Johnson, and also named the junior division senior and grand champion.

Reserve champion of the junior division was Terri Johnson's junior 3-year-old. Guernsey junior champion, both open class and junior division, went to Terri Johnson with a winter yearling, and Tracy Richardson took reserve junior champion honors with her spring yearling.

Youth exhibitor Michael Saylor, Mt. Wolf, topped both open and junior divisions as champion with his senior 2-year-old "MSV Kent X-tra." Michael Bosley, Glenville, took both reserve champion titles with his senior-three "Top-O-Hill Juno Taffy."

Top Milking Shorthorn honors, open class, were shared by the Ellis and Joyce Crowl family's Joy-El Farm, Airville. Champion was "Wil- Lou Irene 10th," a 4-year-old exhibited by Heather Crowl. Reserve champion was "GMC Peerless Snowball," Glenn Crowl's aged cow.

Junior champion Milking Shorthorn was the junior calf exhibited by April Daugherty, York, with Heather Crowl in the reserve junior champion spot with her winter calf.

A pair of youngsters, 2-year-old "Cedar Hill CT Keystone" and junior breeder-owner Cory Thompson, claimed the Supreme champion honors in the York Fair's open class beef breeding show. At the halter is Cory's aunt, Sandy Sweitzer.

Katie Myers and her Charolais heifer champion, "2-C" captured Supreme female honors over the York Fair's beef breeding junior and open class shows. For her accomplishment, Katie was also awarded the Jack Myers Memorial revolving trophy and its $100 prize bonus, a honor presented annually in memory of her grandfather.

York Fair open class market lamb champion is owned by rookie showman Cortney Flory. With the champion are judge John Conaway and Julie Kern at the halter.

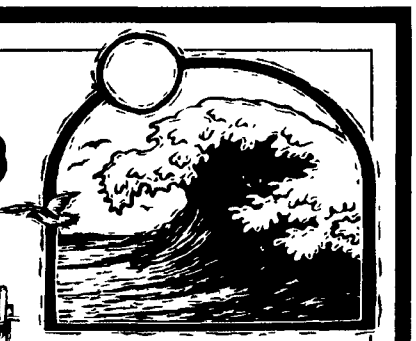
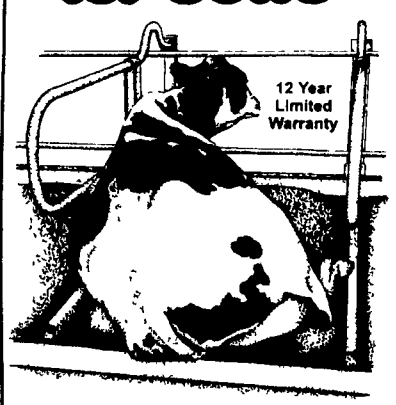
Waterbeds for Cows





ALANTA®

A member of the LmPoly group of companies Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE

The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 12-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE

The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE

Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

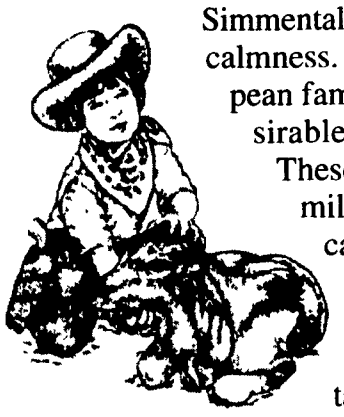
BEEF TIPS

Why Simmental cattle for club calves? (Part I)



Simmental beef cattle are known for their calmness. It is a result of years of European family farmers culling out undesirable cattle in their small herds. These cattle served as the family milk cow and the oxen to pull the carts.

Gentleness is one factor when choosing a club calf for a youngster—a very important factor.
